PRINCE SAYS AU REVOIR TO DOMINION

It Means, He Explains, That He Does Not Want to Say Good-Bye—He Hopes He Won't Be Long Away

CANADA HE FINDS TO BE GOOD TONIC

Prince George Adds, That for His Part, He Finds It Very Difficult to Say Even Au Revoir

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—The Prince of Wales and Prince George are both looking forward to another visit to Canada. "I always like the word 'au revoir,'" the Prince said in introductory remarks at the Canadian Club luncheon here today. "I like it because it means you don't want to say good-bye to friends. I never say good-bye here and I won't say it now after my experience of this trip."

"I came to Canada the first time because it was my job; and a very pleasant job it was. You were all very kind and encouraging to one who tried to be a kind of link between Canada and the Old Country. You made me feel very much at home over here and the result has been that I have been back three times, but only because I wanted to. You are still very kind. You even call me an old-timer. I take that as a compliment, as nobody can even pretend to be an old-timer who has not spent one winter over here. Not that I particularly want to do that," the Prince added, as the guests laughed.

"But I most certainly do want to return because I find in Canada such a tonic that I believe my doctor must order it." He was leaving Canada now, the Prince said later, adding: "I certainly hope it won't be for long."

The Prince, continuing his speech, went on to speak at some length of his impressions of Canada and of the study he had made of her health in material resources and in the character of her people.

"I find it very difficult to say good-bye or even to say 'au revoir' to Canada," he said. "I am extremely sorry, indeed, I will only add that I am specially grateful for your welcome today, a welcome which is also, I am sorry to say, farewell."

Alaska Packers To Make Survey To Gather Data

SEATTLE, Sept. 2.—As the result of the reported partial failure of the Alaska salmon run, the packers will undertake a concerted survey to provide a basis for regulatory action in the future.

This was announced here today after a conference of thirty-five cannerymen operating in Southeastern Alaska.

H. B. Priele, vice-president of the Nakat Packing Corporation, and spokesman for the packers, declared that they had not even considered an "appeal" from the Alaska fishing industry recently issued by Henry W. O'Malley, Federal Fisheries Commissioner.

"The present season is a closed book," he said, "and all we can do is to sit back and count our losses. But we can gather data which will be of benefit to the industry in seasons to come, and this will be done."

California Mummy

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 2.—Mummy of the desert winds and sun, the body of Lawrence Brady, sixty, who left Julian, Cal., July 2, to walk to the Imperial Valley, was brought here yesterday by County Coroner Kelly.

The body, according to Kelly, was discovered on the bare desert, twenty-four miles east of Julian.

ABLE APPEAL VOICED HERE FOR LEAGUE

Sir George Foster, Veteran Statesman, Urges Support to Ideals of League of Nations

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS ADDRESS

Effective Influence of Organization of Nations Has Checked War and Succored Refugees

"I COULD talk on something else, but I don't want to," said Rt. Hon. Sir George Foster last night in explaining why he chose to describe the League of Nations and its work at the Royal Victoria Theatre, after having spoken on the same subject four years ago when he was here.

Four years in this century, he went on to say, counted far more than four years at any other time. It was, in fact, hard to keep track of what was taking place.

"I have come to give you solid facts with respect to the League of Nations," said the speaker, "not to tickle your ears."

He then went on to say that he had been a member representing Canada at the first conference that had been called for the formation of the League. It was then a very little better, he said, which could hardly be articulated. It was a most minute object. Last year, however, he had attended the Assembly, and he could not help making contrasts between the two scenes presented.

"INFLUENCE OF LEAGUE"

"There is not a man in any of the chancelleries of the world today that does not believe that the League of Nations has come to be a part in the working out of international affairs. There is not a nation that does not have to take this organization into account, whether that nation is a member of the League or not."

"It is now fully formed, ready to act at the drop of the hat," said Sir George.

The speaker went on to explain that the assembly of the League was not a gathering for the discussion by academic people, but there gathered in it the representatives of the prime ministers and foreign ministers of the nations of the world. When you get these men together, and the conclusions that are reached by them are practically worked out.

PRESS INVITED TO AID PEACE

LEADERS IN LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL ASK FOR CO-OPERATION

Representatives of Principal Powers Dwell on Need for General Good Will

GENEVA, Sept. 2.—The feature of the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations today was the formal recognition by all its members of the immense power of the press.

Basing their remarks on the recent successful international press conference here, men like Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German Foreign Minister; Paul Boncour, French statesman; Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs; and Miroslav Adachi, Japanese Ambassador to France, dwelt successively on the tremendous responsibility of the press.

Like their colleagues, they pledged themselves to forward in every way possible the press conference resolutions, which treat with such matter the improvement of international communication, reduction of press rates, protection of news against piracy, and the elimination of all censorship in war time. Herr Stresemann emphasized that press delegates occasionally had found some difficulty in obtaining unanimity. He then uttered a phrase which was creating great interest in Geneva tonight:

"Compromise is not a sign of feebleness, but of wisdom."

CO-OPERATION ASKED

He added to this an expression of the hope that newspapermen would collaborate with politicians to achieve a smoother running of international affairs.

Sir Austen Chamberlain referred particularly to the press conference resolution which appeals to the world press to contribute to the consolidation of peace by combating hatreds between nationalities and thus prepare for moral disarmament.

"The collaboration of the press in such a work is of equal consequence and may be even of greater influence than anything statesmen can do," declared Sir Austen.

PLANE STRIKES HIGH POWER WIRE

HONOLULU, Sept. 2.—Capt. John W. Signer, an army aviator, was killed today when an airplane he was piloting struck high power wires near Schofield barracks. Private Hilly, who was flying with Signer, was slightly injured.

Aviators Flying on "Pride of Detroit"

Mr. William S. Brock and Mr. Edward F. Schlee, around-the-world flyers, who reached Croydon aerodrome, London, England, Sunday morning, after hopping across the Atlantic from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, in eighteen hours and nine minutes of elapsed time. They were lost in the fog over Southern England for three hours. Since then they have flown to Munich, Belgrade, Constantinople and Bagdad, and have now completed more than 5,000 miles.

OLD AGE AID PLAN STATED

Pensions Operation Will Be Effective to Provide That Law Will Be Strictly Enforced on Delinquents

LACK OF FILIAL DUTY PUNISHABLE

Bringing into effect the Old Age Pensions plan for the province may have an influence in another direction which was not at first anticipated. This is the awakening of a greater interest in the matter of filial duties on the part of sons and daughters in the province towards their parents.

It is perhaps not generally known that under legislation passed in the province in the year 1922 there is an absolute duty cast upon sons and daughters to render assistance to parents, unless there is shown to the court that sufficient reasons exist to excuse them from doing so, which, of course, would be the inability from a pecuniary standpoint to give such assistance.

CHILDREN'S DUTIES

In the past there has not been a great activity in the enforcement of the law. Under the coming into effect of the Old Age Pensions it would appear to be likely that the dereliction of duty in this particular direction is likely to come prominently before the authorities, with the result that the children of some parents who are in want may be called upon to comply with the legal requirements, and assist in the maintenance of parents.

Under the forms that have to be filled for filing application to the court of the Old Age Pensions Act, which is declared the body to administer the Old Age Pensions scheme, all the sons and daughters of the applicant must be set out with their place of residence. In this way there is likely to be the means afforded for the discovery of whether the children are performing their filial duties.

Steps may be afforded to see that the legal aspect of the situation may be brought very forcibly home to delinquents.

Under the provisions which have been set out in the regulations passed in compliance with the Old Age Pensions Act, the Dominion Act has been followed closely, and in making application it is necessary among other things for the applicant to show that he or she is over seventy years of age. There are other conditions set out requiring answers, and among them is the requirement that the applicant is not in receipt of an income exceeding $365 a year.

LIMIT OF INCOMES

Under the regulations it would therefore appear that payment will not be made to any applicant as to bringing the income over the sum of $1 a day. If it is less than that, the board may make grants sufficient to bring the income up to that amount, but in no case is the grant made by the province to exceed $240 a year, or $20 a month. The receiver of an income of $125 a year, who qualifies in all other ways for the payment of a pension, would be entitled to receive $20 a month. It would appear, which would bring the total income up to $365 a year.

On the other hand, if the applicant had no income, the amount that could be paid out of the pension scheme would be only $240 a year. Of this amount the Dominion will supply fifty per cent.

SIR W. GLYN-JONES IS CRITICALLY ILL

VANCOUVER, Sept. 2.—Sir William Glyn-Jones, well known British pharmacist and barrister, is critically ill in the General Hospital here.

Logger Leaves Estate

VANCOUVER, Sept. 2.—An estate of $52,769 was left by the late Anthony May, retired logger, who died here June 17 last. Except for one legacy of $1,000 to Mrs. E. B. Washer, of this city, the entire estate is bequeathed under his will to relatives in New Zealand.

Sir Robert Horne Back in England Talks of Canada

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Sir Robert Horne, who reached Southampton today from Canada, where he attended the mining and metallurgical congress of the British Empire, spoke with confidence of the future of the Dominion, especially in relation to her vast mineral resources. He said it was fitting that the metallurgical conference should meet in Canada because the mineral resources of Canada offered the greatest prospect of lucrative development of any in the world.

ENGLISH SAID TO BE TALLER

LEEDS, Sept. 2.—English people are becoming taller and more blonde, asserted F. G. Parsons, professor of anatomy, in the University of London, in an address before the Anthropology section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

While the average height of Englishmen was not definitely known, he said, it probably was not more than five feet five inches, though students in the school of medicine, he said, were averaging five feet six inches, and the women of the future would have an average height of five feet seven inches, and the women of the future would have a height of five feet eight inches, or five feet seven inches.

WHOLESALE TO VISIT LAKE

SUPPLEMENTARY FREIGHT SERVICE IS INAUGURATED TO REACH COWICHAN LAKE

Will Cater to Mercantile Interests and Logging Trade of District

Making a bid for the trade of Cowichan Lake lumbering interests and general merchandise, a new service for freight has been established operating by way of the Mill Bay ferry, Duncan, and the Lake.

This service has the backing of the wholesale trade of Victoria, and is to be supplementary, rather than seeking to supplant the existing facilities by the two railways.

In support of the objective of the service to the industries at the Lake, which is to supply consumers of supplies and machinery, a depot organized by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will drive to the Lake on Saturday next, and confer with the representatives of business people of the settlement, to learn their needs and have a friendly conference, dine together, and devise means of mutual benefit to each other.

The freight service that has just been endorsed by the wholesale section of the local Chamber of Commerce has for its object a daily fast service between this city and the business of the Cowichan Lake district, the expedient filling of the Lake, which is to supply consumers of supplies and machinery, a depot organized by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will drive to the Lake on Saturday next, and confer with the representatives of business people of the settlement, to learn their needs and have a friendly conference, dine together, and devise means of mutual benefit to each other.

It is the feeling of the local wholesalers that this section of the Island rightfully should be tributary to Victoria and the service established is calculated to attain this object.

SEASON LULLS BEFORE MANY CONVENTIONS

One Gathering Next Week, Followed by Three Large Bodies Assembling in Ensuing Week

CHEMICAL MEN TO VISIT CITY

Pacific Foreign Trade Council Will Bring Many Prominent People to Victoria Shortly

WHILE hotels in the city are much quieter than has been the case for the past sixty days, it is expected that the week-end, followed by a holiday observed on both sides of the line, will bring many people here.

This lull, however, will not be of long duration, because several conventions will be in the city in the first half of September, the B. C. Hospitals' Association next week, and in the following week the Empire Mining and Metallurgical Congress, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and the Pacific Foreign Trade Council will be here for varying periods.

Announcement is made that next week the American Electro-Chemical Society delegates, to the number of 150, will pass through Victoria, with the object of proceeding to Vancouver to look over some specialized industries. This date will be tomorrow week. The party will spend September 12 in Vancouver, going East the following day.

MANY TO ATTEND

Estimates of the attendance at the larger conferences enumerated above vary somewhat, lists of delegates having already been published with regard to the Empire Mining Congress and the Chamber of Commerce.

In connection with the Pacific Foreign Trade Council meeting, which will be the largest gathering of the party to come here, Captain Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Company, Mr. William P. Fisher, president of the Pacific Coast Steel Co., Mr. Frederick J. Koster, of the California Barrel Company, a former president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, Mr. George I. Kinney, of the International General Electric Company, Mr. H. E. McConaughy, of E. C. Hays, of the Pacific Coast Steel Co., Mr. E. G. Martin, of the Union Oil Company, Mr. H. H. Haight, of the Crocker First National Bank, Mr. Harry C. Buck, of the American Trust Company, Mr. Harry Evans, of E. C. Hays & Sons, Mr. Guy T. Slaughter, of Guy T. Slaughter & Co., and Mr. Wesley O. Ash, manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce in San Francisco.

WIDESPREAD INTEREST

The delegates gathered for this meeting will represent in addition to Canada and the United States, also Great Britain, Cuba, Japan, China, Australia, the Philippines, Mexico, Panama, Chile and India.

Mr. William Piggott, vice-president of the Pacific Coast Steel Company, is president of the council, and was here recently advancing arrangements for the gathering.

WIFE STILL HOPES PLANE ON ATLANTIC

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Leslie Hamilton, wife of Capt. Hamilton, in charge of the overdue monoplane St. Raphael, has made tentative plans to return to New York tomorrow. Definite decision on Mrs. Hamilton's part will depend on reports received during the night in respect to the St. Raphael, now more than twenty-four hours overdue in its flight from Upson, England, to Ottawa.

Mrs. Hamilton arrived here two days ago in anticipation of greeting her husband on landing at Linderburgh Field.

"I am quite sure that my husband and the other passengers in the St. Raphael plane are safe," bravely declared Mrs. Hamilton tonight.

"I would like, though," she added, "to hear from my husband soon, as the suspense is really very great."

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 2.—Thirteen young persons were killed and two seriously wounded in an explosion today at the San Martin fireworks plant. All of the victims were minors, being mostly young women and children.

Captain Courtney Off On Flying-Boat Whale En Route for America

It Is Reported That Journey May Be Made by Way of Azores Instead of Across to Newfoundland—Plane Is Equipped With Exceptionally Powerful Engines

Electrical Equipment Very Complete Both for Radio Sending and Direction

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 3.—Captain F. P. Courtney hopped off on a transatlantic flight at 6:25 a.m. today. In his seaplane, the Whale, he made a perfect take-off in fine weather, and in a few seconds was out of sight on his way towards New York. The Dornier-Napier flying boat, the Whale, is a speedy craft, and is said to be capable of doing 125 miles an hour. The plane is powered by two Napier-Lion engines with a horsepower of 1,000, and can carry a maximum load of 9,000 pounds at high speed. Equipped with radio, the Whale expects to receive constant weather reports from official bureaus in England and America and transatlantic steamers.

CHOLERA TAKES LIVES IN CHINA

Cholera Breaks Out in Chinese Troops—Bodies Piled High on River Banks

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2.—Cholera is reported to have joined the forces of the Nationalist troops in pushing General Sun Chuan-Pang's northern army back from the Yangtze, where, according to Nationalist accounts, the general lost 20,000 men in combat during the heavy fighting of the past week. Foreign dispatches from Nanking state that the cholera epidemic is taking heavy toll among the soldiers in that district.

HARD BATTLE ON YANGTZE RIVER

The Whale will refuel, it is expected, at the Azores and then resume its flight to New York to land on an open stretch of water near the Battery. Weather conditions will in all probability determine the route. If the round trip is completed a total distance of about 7,000 miles will be flown.

On the side of the flying boat is painted "G-EBQUO," which is also the radio call of the boat. On the tail a large "W" is painted.

The flight of the Whale to and from America, with only a brief stop in New York, is designed to establish a tentative commercial plane route. If the round trip is completed a total distance of about 7,000 miles will be flown.

By means of the special radio equipment he will carry, Captain Courtney expects to cope with two problems of oceanic travel—navigation and communication.

In the navigator's cabin of his whale-like Dornier Napier flying boat he will have a radio direction finder in use in keeping his course in any kind of weather and a powerful transmitting set for sending bulletins through the ether.

LONG FLIGHTS LOSING FAVOR

REVELATION AGAINST GAMBLING WITH FATE AGAINST KODDS IS MANIFESTED

Condensation of Further Hazardous Attempts Expressed in Three Countries

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Strong resistance against the false impression being given long-distance flights, especially transoceanic, was manifested in three leading aviation countries today as hope died away for the lives of the St. Raphael's crew.

In London the Government Weather Bureau arrived at the same conclusion that the odds lie heavily against being able to operate at this stage of aviation. Not only in the present season, the analysis held, but for 365 days in any year, nature opposes the attempt with her twin weapons of fog and wind.

At Buffalo, N.Y., the committee on air laws of the American Bar Association expressed hope that legislation might be enacted to halt the mounting toll. The Stinson Aircraft Corporation of Detroit declared that no orders will be accepted hereafter for planes intended for solo oceanic hops. From Washington, Navy hydrographers called attention to the strikingly adverse conditions faced by the St. Raphael, and declared these conditions might be expected to operate against other "immediate" flights reported in prospect.

Characterizing the ocean flights as a "gamblers' hazard," influential German dailies declared the importance being attached to them and urged that the men, machines and money be better spent in other lines of development.

SUIT FILED AGAINST PRINCESS CHARLOTTE FOR SALVAGE CLAIM

WRANGLER, Alaska, Sept. 2.—The Canadian Pacific Railway steamer Princess Charlotte, which was disabled when she struck a rock near here Tuesday night, was attached by the United States Marshal to-night under a libel action brought by the Alaska Packers' Association.

The association, owners of the steamer Ketchikan, which towed the Charlotte into Wrangell, today filed suit in Federal District Court here for $250,000 against the owners of the Charlotte for salvage.

It is expected that the disabled vessel will be held here as the result of the court proceedings unless the Canadian Pacific Railway posts a sizeable bond with the District Court for her release. The libel case will be given a preliminary hearing in Ketchikan October 1.

PRIDE OF DETROIT LEAVES FOR PERSIA

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 2.—Mr. Elias H. Strawn, Chicago, was elected president of the American Bar Association today.

WEATHER HOLDS ONTARIO PLANES

Neither Windsor Nor London Airliners Likely to Resume Flight This Morning

ST. JOHN'S, Que., Sept. 2.—The monoplane Royal Windsor, forced by fog to interrupt its flight last night from Windsor, Ontario, to London, England, will not resume its journey before daylight tomorrow. This was decided by the crew late today.

Repairs made necessary by their forced landing in a hay field at St. George's, six miles from St. John's, were completed this morning, but the flyers found that the field was too rough for a take-off. A gang of men worked for several hours scraping the field and leveling it.

LONDON-TO-LONDON PLANE
CARIBOU, Mr. Sept. 2.—Captain Terry Tully and Lieut. James Medcalf, who brought down their Stinson-Detroler plane safely last night in a hay field near Washburn, six miles from here, said the rain would hold them there. There was no sign of clearing weather.

Another cause for possible postponement was damage done, possibly unintentionally, by curious folk, hundreds of whom climbed to the plane before State Highway Police and Boy Scouts were summoned to protect it during the remainder of its stay.

With the fog as well as rain prevailing here and fog reported at Harbor Grace, Nfld., the next scheduled stopping place, late today, the prospects that the monoplane Sir John Carling would resume its interrupted flight from London, Ontario, to London, England, tomorrow, were considered dubious.

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—The Windsor-London air flyers, Phil Wood and "Duke" Schiller, in their monoplane, the Royal Windsor, contemplate hopping off on a resumption of their flight some time after 7 o'clock this morning, should the weather look at all propitious. This was conveyed to the Canadian Press this morning by Mr. Schiller, when the weather report and forecasts had been telephoned in.

The prospect of "considerable fog" off the Atlantic coast may be a deterrent, Mr. Schiller intimated, but both flyers being anxious to continue the flight, they may make their hop-off within the next twelve hours.

CHANGED IDEAS

Not only had the representatives of the nations come together simply to counsel peace. They came as a great co-operative and co-ordinating body for the uplifting of nations together. Each of these nations had thrown behind the idea that every other nation was an enemy.

That idea was passing away. The nations were finding that they were dependent upon each other. This was shown in the lines of co-operation along lines of economy and financial lines; along the lines of saving the human race, and in the destruction of diseases that were world-wide.

A GREAT EXPIRATION

In the matter of the mixing of the races, the speaker referred to the example that was afforded by the finest display of co-operation shown in the case of the 1,200,000 refugees who had been chased out of Asia Minor by the Turks, and who had been thrown as a miserable wreckage upon the islands along the coast of Greece.

No power, he said, could ask for a vote to take care of these people. The league, however, took up a plan was formulated, and then the question of getting the money to carry it out was met. The league had no money. The plan was hit upon of going to the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," the Bank of England, which was asked for one million pounds.

"What was the answer to be expected from that old thing without a heart?" asked Sir George. "The old lady handed out the one million pounds."

That was soon expended and they went back again and got another one million. The co-operation went on with the work, and when the loan was floated to take care of the sum borrowed from the Bank of England, it was several times over-subscribed. There had been three quarters of these people placed on farms, or in occupational work for which they were adapted, and by the end of the year it was possible to have all of them taken care of.

TO TEACH PEACE VALUES

Appealing to the audience for support of the League, Sir George said that they could not afford to forget the war. The wounds in the world would remain. It was a duty to let the rising generations know that there was such a war, to know of the horrors of war and the values of peace. That was why the League of Nations existed.

"We are pleading earnestly and as effectively as possible to arouse convictions in the people of a peace mentality rather than a war mentality."

Canada did her part in the war from no love of the war, but for the glory of war, he added. Laying stress upon the advantages of the League of Nations and contrasting the many results that had come from the formation of the organization in the matter of settling international disputes, Sir George called to mind the high standards that were made by Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Minister of Great Britain, to get a conference of at least four of the great nations of Europe.

SAFEGUARD AGAINST WAR

He was certain that if he could get them together war would be averted. It was impossible to do this, however, as no national authority existed to bring that about. And there had been an association of nations by which there could have been a conference called at that pregnant time, Sir Edward Grey had said that there never would have been a war.

Chancellor Stresemann, of Germany, said:

Twelve-year-old author and explorer, who was presented to the Governor-General and Lady Willmott at Ottawa. This youthful explorer has had one book for his own published in his experiences in the James Bay country. This summer he traveled with his father, Mr. North, and his mother, Mrs. North, to the Arctic region, and is now on his way home to Wisconsin in 1926-27.

many, had said last year at the gathering that if in 1914 there had been the League of Nations war might have been avoided. Today this association of the nations existed and was functioning in the preventing of war. There were fifty-six nations now joined together in the League, and the speaker intimated many frictions that had been straightened out and war avoided. It was no longer possible for these nations to go to war. They were bound to resort to all peaceful means before any appeal to arms could be attempted.

THE HAGUE COURT

The International Court at The Hague was referred to in the most complimentary way by Sir George. In spite of the feeling on the part of many that such a thing could not be accomplished, the court representing the different systems of jurisprudence constituted, and this court had disposed of a very large number of cases involving disputes between nations, just as in civil life disputes would be disposed of in the courts.

Now if any of the fifty-six nations constituting the League saw anything outside of their own country that was likely to give rise to a dispute and create ill feeling, it was the duty of the nation to report it to the League, and the council of the League should be called upon to settle the matter.

It was no longer an issue between the two nations who might be directly parties to settle. The effects upon the general peace of the world had to be considered.

Sir George made an appeal at the end of the address for membership, pointing out the advantages that were derived by the co-operation of all.

THE PLATFORM

The theatre was well filled. Mr. Justice McPhillips, of the Court of Appeal, past president of the local branch, presided and paid a compliment to the ability of the speaker, and also called for assistance for the local branch that was doing the most for the youth of the country in the advantages of peace. He said that the organization was not one that believed in peace at any price. It, however, was pledged to use every endeavor to settle amicably all disputes before appealing to arms.

Among those on the platform with Sir George and the chairman were Mr. James H. Fletcher, Alderman Cuthbert Holmes, Mr. Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., Mr. B. C. Nicholas, Mrs. McNaughton, vice-president of the Women's Canadian Club, Mr. C. P. Hill, Mr. Ira Dilworth and Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn, representing His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—An application for a fifty per cent cut in the tariff on hay from Canada has been made to the tariff commission by consumers of the New England States. Hearing on the cost of production and arguments for and against such a decrease probably will be started this fall.

At the same time there is a tentative application before the commission from haygrowers of New York State for an increase in the tariff on hay from Canada. The foreign market for the suitable article.

IMPORT COMPANY BOOKS DEFECTIVE

Mr. Rowell Asks Customs Commission to Make Recommendations as to Montreal Business

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—A submission by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., commission counsel, that the bonding privileges enjoyed by the Franco-Canadian Import Company of Montreal should be withdrawn, featured a rather uneventful sitting of the Royal Customs Commission this afternoon. In addition, he urged that the evidence and exhibits in respect to the Franco-Canadian Import Company, which was before the commission, be transmitted to the Minister of Customs, with a view to assessing the organization for income tax.

This finding was asked by the commission counsel after A. E. Nash, auditor, had testified to the fact that it was impossible to arrive at the amount due for income tax from the books and records available in the office of the company. He stated that sales records on the files of the company and of the department were much in excess of those recorded in the books of the concern.

INCOMPLETE RECORDS

Mr. Rowell, in making the submission, pointed out that a company which kept incomplete records was hardly entitled to bonding privileges. It seemed as if the Government was not justified in continuing the Franco-Canadian bond.

To this, J. Z. Clark, Windsor, Ont., representing persons interested in the Franco-Canadian Company, stated that the bonding privileges were not desired any longer save for the purpose of selling the liquor now in the bonded warehouses.

Those interested merely asked to pay the duty, get the liquor out, dispose of it and have the bond closed out.

Mr. Rowell said that there did not seem to be any reason why the liquor should remain there indefinitely. He suggested that the bonding privileges be continued only long enough to permit the disposal of the stock on hand.

The afternoon was devoted very largely to clearing up certain matters which were opened during the tour of the commission.

A. E. Nash, under examination by R. B. Law, assistant counsel, said that his firm had investigated certain Customs brokers and found grave irregularities in the business of some of those investigated. In some of the smaller brokers it was found that no records of any kind were kept. He advised the institution of a system of inspection of Customs brokers, and thought the brokers should be required to keep records. Mr. Nash made it clear that he was not referring to Customs brokers as a whole when he spoke of irregularities discovered. The commission adjourned until Tuesday.

Made-in-Canada Show For Western Display

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association was held at a luncheon held here yesterday to ten presidents and managers of what are known as the "five big firms" of the West, following which a discussion developed of a closer co-operation between Canadian manufacturers and the Western Fair Association.

It was suggested at a meeting that a wider exhibition and distribution of Canadian-made products in Western Canada would aid in this objective.

During the discussion it was pointed out that while Western Fairs were anxious to have more manufacturing exhibits they are hampered by lack of space and it is probable that as a result of the meeting the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Western Fair Association will co-operate in the working out of a scheme of self-supporting "made-in-Canada buildings," such as has so successfully been instituted by the Canadian National Exhibition.

Method of Appraisal Is Explained to Citizens

Narrow Strip of Land Is Adopted as Unit for Purpose of Valuing City Property Under New Assessment Plan

A strip of land one foot wide by 120 feet deep is taken as the unit common to most subdivisions in Victoria, for the purpose of valuing all property within the city in the fresh appraisal now under way by the City Assessor's Department.

In the new method of appraisal for assessment purposes being adopted by the City in line with the most modern practice in vogue generally throughout the Pacific Northwest, property is reduced to the common basis of unit values, the value to a unit front foot in the centre of the property being taken as a key to the whole.

In actual practice it is found that no two properties have precisely the same conditions influencing their value, so that the duty of assessment is one of comparison in the light of existing factors.

An earnest effort is being made to equalize assessments on all properties, so that the same class of property in different parts of the city will have similar appraisals for taxation purposes. The results, in so far as it applies to that portion of the city already reassessed, is found to lead to a grading in values along a street front, in keeping with the present worth of the land.

The actual value of each property is arrived at through the consideration of a host of factors, each with an influence on the earning capacity of the property, on bearing on its present worth.

The reorganization of appraisal methods is aiming at the introduction of a simple system that will prove just and workable under prevailing conditions. So far, one third of the work has been done, mainly that portion of the city which lies within a half-mile radius of the City Hall.

The present review is concerned chiefly with land values, the appraisal of buildings in the business section of the city having been fully covered in 1922-23, when James Fairweather, an independent appraiser, was engaged for a special building survey. Mr. Fairweather has been recalled by the City to advise in the institution of the new system, which is similar to those widely used on this continent, and notably at Portland, Oregon.

The work is being carried out under the direction of William Scowcroft, city assessor, aided by George Okell, assistant assessor, and an augmented staff. For the purpose of the new appraisals the first half or sixty feet, at 71.3 per cent; the first ninety feet is worth 90 per cent under the scale; with 120 feet as the maximum value, or 100 per cent.

From an appraiser's viewpoint each property is a separate problem, with not two lots having precisely the same conditions affecting their value. Premises at a corner, or near a corner, are influenced by factors that do not occur in the case of property in the centre of a block.

Opposite sides of the same street and block may have different values, and an index to the reason for this is shown by the traffic counts which have been taken of Victoria since the city was first assessed, and under varying conditions of weather, time and date.

The area in which a piece of property is located may, in turn, be subject to influences such as will lead to rising values in the neighborhood, or the reverse may be true. Each piece of property, in the alignment of values, is being considered on its merits, and in the light of very full data as to its history.

EFFECT TO PRESENT TIME
As the 1928 assessment roll had to be struck while the revaluation was still under way, it is chiefly the inner section of the city that has been brought under the new system so far. The revision will extend to every part of the city within the next two years, it is stated. The equalization of the tax burden in the light of current conditions is the chief aim behind the introduction of the scientific method of appraisals.

Convinced that it is the justice of the tax, rather than its size, that counts, ratepayers are invited by the City to call in at the assessor's office and talk over their assessment problems with city officials. They will be shown the unit value maps prepared to show the unit foot worth of property where the assessment has been completed and given the reasons for the appraisal made by the city in the case of their own property, as well as being afforded every opportunity of comparison with the values placed on property similar to their holdings in other parts of the city.

On the same maps will also be seen the result of the traffic counts, a record of how pedestrian traffic moves in the business area; the areas affected by land reversions;

Trade Commissioner Will Tour Dominion

MR. HERCULE BARRE, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner in France, who has been authorized by the Dominion Government to return to Canada for a business tour across the continent. This will be his second visit since his appointment in 1919.

NEPTUNE RAPS SEA TELEPHONY

REPORTER FINDS OLD MONARCH OF OCEANS MUCH DISGRUNTLED

His Majesty Regrets Stupidity in Letting Columbus Cross Atlantic Years Ago

The history of transoceanic telephony, told many times, is reviewed from a new angle in Long Lines, monthly publication of that department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. Long Lines says it sent a reporter to the bottom of the ocean with instructions to find King Neptune and get anything he might have to say on this new invasion of his domain.

The reporter found His Majesty in a blue funk, slumped down among his seaweed cushion, plainly disapproving of everything he saw and several things he couldn't see. Complaining of his stupidity in letting a man named Columbus across the Atlantic some 400 years ago, Neptune bewailed the fact that man had found ways of talking across and jumping across since then. Listen to the reporter:

"I shouldn't have let Columbus get over safely. Neptune said, 'Ever since then I've had trouble with persistent upstarts like him. It wasn't long, as I figure time, before men went from sail to steam and began to talk across the ocean by submarine telegraph cables for communication with each other in various countries. But, after all, I guess that wasn't so bad.'

"O.K.," cut in the reporter, appraising a comely mermaid who swam past at the moment. Neptune scarcely noticed the interruption and went on with his lament:

"In 1915, though, I really began to get nervous. I let about that time, as I recollect, that men got the idea of trying to talk to each other across the water. What's more, they succeeded—in a way. For instance, somehow or other they passed a few words from Arlington, Va., to Panama; right through the air, mind you, without using wires or anything else, so far as I could make out. In the same year some words went out from the same station and were heard in Honolulu and Paris.

HE DID PUT UP A HOWL
"I put up a considerable howl about it—they admitted that much—and things quieted down for a while. Next thing I knew they had tied Havana and Key West together with what looked like one of my Grade A eels. I soon found out that it was a submarine telephone cable—a bundle of wires that men could talk through. That was in 1921—110 miles more of my realm cramped to the size of a meadow brook. I was simply astounded.

"But I hadn't heard nothin' yet, as you might say. In the very next year a crowd of telephone engineers tried talking from New Canada, Conn., to the S. America, 400 miles out in the Atlantic. I couldn't believe my ears, the way they put it over.

"Neptune reached for a nearby sponge and dabbed away a few salty tears. Sensing an approaching climax in the old man's story, the reporter sat down on Dave Jones' locker and prepared to do some fast, emotional writing.

"But in 1923, would you believe it, they sneaked up on me for fair and heard a peculiar crackling noise around on the Pacific side, and hurried over to look into the matter. 'Pon my soul, they had started peculiar wireless telephone service between Catalina Island and the mainland. They were gossiping across that thirty-mile stretch of water as if it were only an alley. I was mad as a wet cat. After a while, though, I cooled off.

THEN HE WAS NEARLY SUNK
"Young feller, I was a simpleton to think that way, because a little later (Neptune was trembling now) I was flattered to hear 'em talking of telephone men got together and talked from New York to London. 'Just demonstrating one-way transatlantic radio telephony,' they said. But the couldn't fool me. That was only to hide their real intentions. They kept on 'demonstrating' until one day in 1926 I was flattered to hear 'em talking both ways between those two cities. Don't think that I set around wringing my hands either. I was giving 'em plenty of opposition all the while, with state and all, but they just seemed to thrive on it.

"If I only could have discouraged 'em—then! The weren't satisfied with just proving that it could be done, for only a few months ago they kicked my throne from under me, so to speak, by making transatlantic talk possible for everyone. Yes, indeed, even babies have cooed from the United States to Great Britain. It's that simple."

Thrills aplenty were experienced by a fleet of Norwegian whalers in Atlantic sea during the season that has just closed. Within an hour forty-one icebergs were spotted, one of them being several miles

BASIS OF VALUATION
Taking a strip one foot wide by 120 feet deep as the property unit in general use in Victoria, the revaluation is proceeding, with a personal inspection of property, and the gathering of a complete history of each property visited. The results are shown on unit value maps, giving the front foot value of each property, and affording a ready means of comparison with similar property in other areas of the city.

For property that is not of unit depth, and for fractional lots, a special scale of percentages has been worked out, being prepared after a study of the most recent methods adopted in other centers. Under this scale, the first thirty feet of a lot 120 feet deep is valued at 45.1 per cent of the whole; the

Credit for the institution of the new system is being given to Alderman William Marchant, chairman, and the members of the Court of Revision sitting in 1926, who recommended the plan adopted by the City Council at the beginning of this year.

Being compiled on modern methods of assessment, and based on exhaustive data, the new appraisal is expected to result in an authoritative review of property values all over the city, of considerable importance to property owners, and the city alike.

Explanation Given of Shock in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Sept. 2.—"Seeing an article in Tuesday's newspapers regarding the phenomenon, supposedly an earthquake, I may be able to throw some light on the subject," states Mrs. James Simpson, county line.

"On Monday my husband and two of our boys were going west toward Port Langley in a truck at about half past five p.m. when they heard a distant rumbling noise. Looking up to see if it was lightning they saw, about a mile up in the air above Coquitlam, a large round mass of thick smoke, just as if a shell had burst in the sky."

It seemed so unusual to them that they were waiting to see if there was any mention of the occurrence."

A MATTER OF FOOD SUPPLY

Britain's determination in the matter of possessing adequate naval defence for Empire needs is in part due also to the food supply of the British Isles. That food supply is dependent on imports. Britain would have been starved during the Great War had she not been able to keep the sea ways free for her commerce. Through lack of adequate carrier strength in the Great War her merchant marine suffered heavy losses through submarine depredations and her food supplies were proportionately reduced. Her people had to be put on ration. Those who advocate naval disarmament cavalierly overlook the lessons of the Great War. They are simply imbued with pacific intentions, laudable enough in their way, but hardly consonant with the teachings of history or with the attitude of self-respect which should inspire nations. The Tripartite Naval Conference at Geneva failed because Britain is determined, for one thing, that her people shall be fed in times of emergency. This is a matter about which, in the interests of national preservation, nothing can be left to chance. Any agreement against war that could be negotiated may be converted by a wave of national feeling into a scrap of paper. Very recent history teaches this. The sanctity of the public law has been violated time and again, and there could never be any guarantee against violation in the future. Under such conditions nations will continue to insure themselves against danger in times of emergency. Britain, in the maintenance of adequate naval forces, is not only insuring herself against the tread of armed enemies on her shores, but as well insuring that, no matter what contingencies arise, her people will be fed. To feed them the trade routes of Empire must be kept open and protected both in times of peace and war.

APPLES AS FOOD

Advice is tendered to those who are studying diet recipes by Dr. E. A. Hall, of this city, to eat apples in preference to oranges, on the ground that they contain the essential salts and vitamins, which are "the very dynamite of food." He maintains, and no doubt correctly, that there is far more nutritive value in an apple than in an orange, and that this fruit assists more in promoting oxidation in the body and in the burning up of waste material. He might also have told the public, if it is not a medical secret, how many apples, how often and when they should be eaten.

We do not doubt for a moment that an apple-eating diet is likely to be healthier than one, whose diet is liberally besprinkled with oranges and lemons. Medical knowledge has often enough pointed to the high nutritive value of the apple, but it remains for apple-growing countries to supplement the efforts of doctors by an advertising campaign of their own. British Columbia suffers in a commercial way, and probably in a health sense just as well, because of the public taste for imported oranges, for the consumption of these makes the consumption of the home-produced apples so much the less, and in scores of orchards the produce is left to rot on the ground.

It is the same in Eastern Canada, where, no doubt, the orange-juice campaign is as admirably organized as it is in this province. No one suggests for a moment that oranges, taken in moderation, do any harm. The point is that apples do more good. They do us good in a dual sense in British Columbia, for the apples here are of the prize-winning varieties, with as high nutritive qualities as are possessed by those to be found anywhere, and a greater consumption of them by our own people would help materially in an industrial sense. Dr. Hall says develop the health and wealth of the province. If that can be done by the simple and enjoyable practice of eating apples, by all means cultivate them on the daily menu. They are a highly useful aid in diet, and, who knows? they were used more widely, as they would be were their nutritive qualities more extensively advertised, the price might be brought within the reach of all. As it is, oranges, more highly priced than apples and often very fat being in good condition, sell at prices which almost everyone appears able to afford, or does afford so long as the orange-juice legend appeals to human credulity.

AN EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT

The cause of African education has suffered an almost irreparable loss in the untimely death of Dr. J. E. Kwegyir Aggrey, vice-principal of Achimota College on the Gold Coast. The romance of the rise of the belated peoples touched the figure of Dr. Aggrey, as of Dr. Booker T. Washington, an African also and fellow educationist. Of the blood royal of the Fanti race, able to trace his lineage back to warriors who fought at the Battle of Chesham in the eleventh century, an African of the Africans, the boy of a jungle village emerged to become widely known as a scholarly gentleman, recipient of twelve college degrees, and with a charming personality to whom all doors were flung open. Two years ago he was appointed by the British Government vice-principal of the Government College of Achimota. At Achimota Britain is making a notable experiment in education. To blaze the trail of a truly indigenous education for Africans, to evoke and direct the development of the native mind and character so as to preserve both the genius of the race and fit its members to play their part in their new environment, is the task to which this newly organized college is addressing itself. Africa, more perhaps than any other continent, is being subjected to economic and social changes. On the Gold Coast, for example, the cocoa exports rose from 7,000 tons in 1905 to 223,000 tons in 1924. The whole of these were grown by African farmers whose sudden rise to affluence thrust upon them a new social status and outlook. Then, too, the old bonds which held society together are largely gone—preparation for war and the religious sanctions—the former because of the Pax Britannica, the latter from growing scepticism as to the ju-ju religion of their ancestors. Dislocated from traditional customs and outlook, the native tends to become a social derelict. He needs, to change the metaphor, a new stance. To help him find it is the educational problem of Achimota College. The schools have hitherto been of little help. The teaching of English in the English way to African boys turned out a stream of clerks who would not return to the villages, but hung about the towns, a glut on the market, and, in most cases, an example of what education is not.

Under the Achimota plan all lessons will be in the vernacular, at least up to the advanced grades. History will be taught through the story of tribal origins, science by a study of the pestiferous ants and mosquitoes which will lead on to their destruction, mathematics through housecraft which will bring about improved housing conditions and hygiene. The new social sanctions and motives, it is hoped, will be generated by the contagion of inspirational personalities giving instruction and example in mutuality and reverence. Himself the embodiment of the Achimota idea, and entrusted by British educational statesmen with peculiar responsibility in working it out, Dr. Aggrey's death is a great loss to the race to which he belonged and to which he had dedicated himself.

BRITISH COINAGE

Changes in the design of British silver coinage will shortly be making their appearance. The changes are principally in connection with entirely new and artistic designs on the side reverse to that of the King's head. A committee has been working on these changes for five years, and the designs chosen are those of eminent artists which will bring them more into harmony with modern taste. There will be a new reverse for each of the silver coins in use. One difficulty experienced in the new designs is that of a lack of artists who are both designers and die-engravers. The art of direct die-engraving by hand appears to have been lost. Dies are now cut by machinery and the difficulty is to get the design that will reduce satisfactorily so that mechanical reproduction is faithful.

Britain's gold coinage will remain unchanged. A coin expert, in commenting on this decision, says it would not be desirable to alter the design of the sovereign, "because it is known all over the world and is of international significance." The "Venetians," he says, "had a design for their gold coins which became known all over the world and the design remained immobile for centuries, because if it had been altered it would not have found ready acceptance outside. The ancient Athenians did the same thing, keeping to one design for their coinage, and more or less, disregarding artistic value altogether." The proposed changes in the silver coinage of Britain will be the first of a substantial character that have been made this century beyond those which are necessitated by the death of a monarch.

The recent earthquake in Palestine, with its loss of forty lives and considerable damage to property, draws attention to the recurring shocks in that portion of the earth's surface. Since A.D. 200 there have been a large number of earthquakes recorded, and some seventeen of these have been of special severity. Jerusalem was badly damaged in earthquakes in 1016, 1034, 1105 and 1113. In 1837 Safed was destroyed and Tiberias also suffered. During the period of 1860 to 1882 there were twelve shocks felt in Jerusalem. An area particularly susceptible is that which embraces Northern Syria, the Jordan Valley and the coast of Palestine.

The price of motor spirit continues to decline in Britain. The retail price in London is now 27 cents a gallon, and for commercial purposes it can be bought at 23 cents per gallon. One company sells for commercial purposes at 20 cents and for better grade spirit at 25 cents per gallon.

OMAR ON MODERN PROGRESS

Have all the years that of the world have sped.
Since in my garden Persian roses shed
Their leaves, told you a whit more than I knew
Of what things are—the living things or dead?
You boast the mechanism of today.
Your cars now run where camels trod the way.
What time I saw of love and divers trifles,
But are you much the wiser? Tell me, pray!
You pride yourself that Science tells you now
Of space and time, exactly what and how They're interlocked in some mysterious way.
But unto Allah still I pray and bow.

You've mastered many secrets—more than I,
Beneath the waves, and in the heavens high.
You move in air, and space, and fondly think
The laws of nature yours to sell or buy.
But all your triumphs serve but to increase
Desires in you from which comes no release;
The greater gain but brings the greater pain,
Whereas my wants were few—and I had peace.

Ah! many repts you've torn in that darkness
That had no more beyond my utmost hall.
But have you seen, when you have peeped within,
Aught more than I did, when I told my tale.

—Charles Mennun.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

He was an active little man with bushy whiskers. The bushy whiskers on his face were raven black, and the hair on his head was raven black. His eyes were also black, and his pale face (as much of it as could be seen through his bushy whiskers) seemed to indicate a general condition of physical blackness. He looked like a Jew, and he was an Englishman. He was a newspaper reporter and he did not look like a newspaper reporter. He had read about and heard about. The newspaper reporter of our youthful imagination always was a young man who wore glasses and was completely destitute of hair on his face.

He looked like a middle-aged man and appeared to be out of his natural element in the reporters' box at a baseball match, for that is where we first had the honor of becoming acquainted with Mr. H. J. P. Good, whose death was announced in the columns of The Colonist on Thursday morning. As a matter of fact, Mr. Good was then completely out of his natural element in the reporters' box at a baseball match. He knew nothing about the game of baseball, and few of his contemporaries at that time knew anything about baseball, for although the people of Toronto at that time took a keen interest in almost every form of sport, an interest which has grown with the growth of the city, they were not keenly interested in the United States game of baseball. Their chief interest was in lacrosse, and they were specially interested in the intense rivalry between the Toronto Lacrosse Club and the St. Catharines Lacrosse Club for the distinction of being the flag-bearers of the game of lacrosse in Canada and of the world.

Mr. Good was in the reporters' box at that baseball game as the representative of the Toronto Mail, because a new international professional baseball league had been formed, and what probably was the first game of professional baseball played in Toronto was about to be played. It was considered an important sporting event, for the Governor of the State of New York was at it, and the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario was at it. We were at it, because the sporting editor of The Toronto Globe, Mr. W. H. Williams, like the sporting editor of The Toronto Mail, knew nothing about it, and thought, probably, because we were very young, that we must know something about it.

There was a luncheon after the game, at which the guests were drunk in champagne to the health and prosperity of the new league, and the Governor of New York and the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario made eloquent speeches on the significance of the occasion from the point of view of cordial international relations. After we had partaken of a glass of champagne (for the very first time in our life), and Mr. Good had drunk at least one glass of the sparkling wine, the conversation became confidential, and the representative of The Mail admitted his complete ignorance of the principles of baseball, and asked us if we would have the goodness to tell him as much or as little as we knew about it. So we submitted our report to the sporting editor of The Globe as quickly as possible, asked the in-charge of the composing department to have it "set up" as soon as possible, had proofs "pulled" and copies dispatched to the offices of all the newspapers then published in Toronto. There is little doubt that that first "box score" was a baseball curiosity, but it was printed in all the Toronto newspapers and in some of the newspapers of New York State, too, for during the evening we received telegrams from the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle and the Syracuse Sunday Times to "put it on the wires" for them.

But if Mr. H. J. P. Good then lacked one of the qualifications considered necessary in a competent sporting reporter, he afterwards became the most accomplished sporting editor in America, if not in the world. He was the first newspaper man to recognize the value of the sporting page as a popular feature. When he was appointed sporting editor of The Toronto Mail, there was not a newspaper in the world which made a specialty of sport and printed all the sport news on one page. The news of sport was considered of so little value that the reader had to search all through the paper for it, and was lucky if he found it. The idea of a complete sporting page was first conceived and adopted by Mr. Good when a member of the staff of The Mail, and was speedily adopted by all the newspapers of America. Today the sporting page is the most popular feature of every newspaper—and Mr. H. J. P. Good was the father of it. The despatch stone has become the head of the structure. The veteran sporting editor is dead, the form of sport he loved best (lacrosse) is moribund in Toronto, and the form of sport he despised when we first met him (baseball) flourishes in Toronto.

HORSE SHOW JUDGING

Sir,—In regard to the letters appearing in recent issues of The Colonist with reference to the judging of saddle horses at the Willows Fair, I would like to draw your attention to the following facts. In none of the classes did I observe that the judge had any means of ascertaining or proving the height of the horses shown, and in consequence it was apparent that in more than one case horses were exhibited in classes where their height exceeded that which was required in the rules laid down in the Exhibition catalogue, and in one very obvious case, the park hacks under fifteen hands, received a prize. It is stated in the rules that horses would be judged 50 per cent for conformation and 50 per cent for manners. One mare which received a prize was a park hack, a lady's hunter, and a general purpose horse, was a half Clyde, and showed this obviously. She possessed an entire lack of manners, galloping into the ring and disturbing the other contestants, and when called upon by the judge to remove she refused to do so, and prize, refused to leave the line, rearing and bumping into the other horses, so that it became necessary for one of the riders to lead her. The horse given first prize in this class was also not under the control of its rider, while its conformation did not appear to be up to the standard of some of the horses which were not recognized by the judge.

In the park hack and children's pony classes the horses were judged for conformation without the removal of the saddles and no individual examination of the paces and actions of the contestants selected for awards was given.

In the Wednesday issue of The Victoria Times there appeared a photograph representing "Doris McCreedy Winter" jumping a high jump in her usual brilliant style on Blackbird. This event did not take place until Saturday. It was not won by Mrs. Winter and there was no photograph present.

These incidents show that it was very difficult for judges with even good horses to receive recognition. G. GRIFITHS, Dunedin, B.C., August 30, 1927.

"THE CORN FIELD"
There are banners that wave and lift down the ranks of the growing corn, where the Summer breezes drift and a whisper of June breezes, verdant banners, send proudly fly while the sun's golden rays beat down as the Summer passes by like a queen in her flower-decked gown. And the song of the song birds send adrift on the Summer breeze—does it tell of blue skies that bend over meadows and hills and trees? Does it hint of the Winter days, when the snows shall all be stored? Ah, no; from the fields of maize a rarer song has soared! From each banner that waves and lifts, comes a message of hope and trust, of the earth and its bounteous gifts, of the grain that shall grow from the dust!

HOUSE OF SCOTLAND YARD MAN STRIPPED

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Chief Constable of Scotland Yard, Mr. W. H. Wensley, has been stripped of his rank and pension for a year, because he has been charged with having been involved in a conspiracy to defraud the "Athens Treasury" at Delphi. The "Athens Treasury" was a reconstructed many of the original Metopes of that little shrine which was destroyed by the earthquake of 1864. The "Athens Treasury" was a reconstructed many of the original Metopes of that little shrine which was destroyed by the earthquake of 1864. There is the final argument: Whether the treasures at issue would be safe in Greece. It is not many years since an exquisite "Odeon" of Graeco-Roman date was uncovered at Patras, with all its marble fittings intact. Nothing that the British Colony could do would make the civic fathers of that town take measures for its preservation, and now every scrap of marble has gone from it, to make doorsteps and cupboards for burghers of Patras. In 1924, some beautiful Corinthian columns of Pentelic marble were unearthed, in digging for the foundation of a new house. The contractor had them smashed with sledges-hammers at once, lest the building should be delayed while investigations were made. While such things happen, some caution seems to be called for.

PICTURES HELP SAVE TWINS

Events held in this country and Europe at which large numbers of twins are honored guests, are proving a great help in stamping out the belief that twins are the greatest curse to a household, and that only one of the pair should live. At the Slesser Memorial Home at Calabar, newspaper pictures of the "twin parties" are displayed, with good effect, to convince the natives that both babies should survive. In Arochuku, the chieftain women are making themselves responsible for twins born in the district, and at present there are forty twin children there. At Christmas time a party was given exclusively for the pairs. A house of refuge for twins, built by native women, was dedicated on April 24.

The Elgin Marbles

By G. A. LUNDIE

The Greek Government is agitating for the return of the famous Elgin Marbles. In order to place them in the Parthenon, which is being restored. The question of the return of these interesting antiquities, or in the present instance of a portion of them, is one that is raised periodically in the public mind, and is usually settled more on the grounds of sentiment than reason. There is, of course, no dispute that Lord Elgin took the marbles quite legally from their owner, the Sultan of Turkey. It may be that the Sultan had no right to them, save that of conquest; but he held them by that right for several centuries, and the Greeks were in no state to care for them or for the loss of them.

The Parthenon-Erectheum was in the harem of the "Didar Agha," of Athens. As for the frieze from the temple of Nike, at least Lord Elgin did not erect that from its place. He picked it out from the rubbish heaps in which the fragments of that temple lay, at the foot of the Acropolis, where they had been hurled when the Turk decided to put a battery there. It was his discovery of it that put the later men on the track, and enabled them to reconstruct the gem that we know. That saved them. Further, it was the fact of his taking the marbles that saved them. Within twenty years of their removal, both Turks and Greeks were bombarding the Acropolis, and each other in it, in turns, with as little respect for antiquity as a sapper usually shows to the Parthenon shows the scars to this day, and had the "Elgins" been there then they would not now be in the world. Yet it may be well to give back for sentiment's sake, even what is lawfully yours, and the question of the moment is, not the return of the sculptures proper, but the return of the Parthenon and the "Maiden" of Caryatid from the same building, that are now in the British Museum.

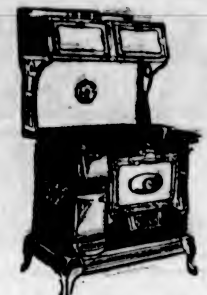

FATE OF THE "MAIDEN"

"It can certainly be argued that architectural specimens are not quite on the same footing as sculpture," writes the Rev. Dr. W. A. Ingram, in The Archaeologist. When the building from which they were taken, and of which they are an essential part, is being repaired, there is a strong case for returning them. The same would apply, perhaps with even more force, to the 'gum' and the 'capital' from the columns of the Parthenon, though these have not been mentioned. It is the fate of the 'Maiden' that is really in debate."

Yet here there are certain facts to be weighed before a decision is made. It is a melancholy fact that in the last hundred years, the "Maidens" in the Erechtheum have wasted most painfully. The atmosphere of Athens is not what it was the days when Sophocles praised it owing most likely to the factories at the Piræus. Were the "Maiden" given back the Greeks might then hesitate at putting her back in her original place. The same applies to the Friese and the Metopes. There are two casts of the former in the Museum, casts of that which still stands on the spot in the Parthenon. Comparison of these two has shown how much damage was done between the day of Lord Elgin, who had the earlier cast taken in 1810 and the date of the second impression sixty years later. And this process goes on and on, and the chances of their being returned to their original places, and they are therefore in the local museum, while facsimiles in hard cement adorn the "Treasury."

"SAFETY" IN GREECE
There is the final argument: Whether the treasures at issue would be safe in Greece. It is not many years since an exquisite "Odeon" of Graeco-Roman date was uncovered at Patras, with all its marble fittings intact. Nothing that the British Colony could do would make the civic fathers of that town take measures for its preservation, and now every scrap of marble has gone from it, to make doorsteps and cupboards for burghers of Patras. In 1924, some beautiful Corinthian columns of Pentelic marble were unearthed, in digging for the foundation of a new house. The contractor had them smashed with sledges-hammers at once, lest the building should be delayed while investigations were made. While such things happen, some caution seems to be called for.

There is a case for the return of the "Elgins," as there is always a case for generosity, and the case is stronger a good deal when it is a question of such of the marbles as are structural elements of a building that is being repaired. Yet with the sculptures the matter is not quite so simple. The real question involved is whether or not every country is to accept the principle that all antiquities must be returned to the country of origin when those countries have learned to value them. It is not a matter that concerns England alone, though only England is asked to see it. There is a certain statue in the Louvre, for instance, that was legally bought by a French officer from its legal owner, about the time that the "Elgins" were acquired. The said legal owner had bought it from its discoverer, his tenant, at the cost of three cream-colored diamonds and two diamonds of hay, and he smuggled it on board

I-ON-A-CO—the Magnetic Health Belt—Has Brought Relief to Many in Victoria

TESTIMONIALS from people who live at a distance are never so convincing as those from people who live in your own community. That is why we are always glad to refer you to Victoria residents who have tried the I-ON-A-CO Belt and found that it has helped them tremendously. Perhaps you know some of these people.

My father-in-law suffered from neuritis for two or three years. From the very first day he used the belt he has had no recurrence of his trouble. Hamsterley-Lakehead.

I was brought here from the East to see if the climate would save my life. I had been sick for 14 years and was not expected to live till Spring. Today I consider myself perfectly normal and have not had an ache or pain since I took my first treatment. Mary J. Hall, 1210 Richmond Ave.

For the last three years I have suffered from rheumatism. I have now been taking treatments for three weeks and the benefit I have received is amazing. I am a painter by trade and I can now do a day's work without effort. J. Barrett, 2962 Colquhoun Ave.

For several years I have been suffering from sciatica after three or four treatments I felt better, after twelve treatments the sciatica completely left me. D. Dowell, 1313 Hamilton St.

2,000 IN SCOTCH CHOIR

In connection with the Edinburgh Musical Festival held recently in the Scotch city, a choir of 2,000 voices sang familiar Scotch Psalm tunes. The leaders were Sir Richard Terry and Geoffrey Shaw. Many of the songs were accompanied by a pipe organ, and some were rendered unaccompanied. Singing to organ accompaniment, Sir Richard said, at the event, left him "cold," unless the singing was very good, but the old Psalms sung by a large choir, unaccompanied, thrilled him "to the marrow." His remark that he wished that the advocates of the "sickly nineteenth century part-songs, of which there were many in the hymn books, might be present to hear it," won applause from the audience.

VITAGLASS BEING TESTED

Vitaglass, which admits the violet rays of sun, is to be tested as to its benefits to plant life, at University College, Southampton, England, and at Kew. At Kew, one-half of an experimental greenhouse will be fitted with vitaglass, and the other half with ordinary glass. A typical selection of flowers will be duplicated in each section, while a similar course will be followed with a wide variety of plants, including radishes, sunflowers and beans, in a large glass corridor with a southern exposure. It is hoped to discover whether any advantages, such as earlier cropping, better quality, heat saving, better color, harder constitution, and greater resistance to disease, are obtained by the use of vitaglass.

Prince of Wales Makes Statesmanlike Speech On Samples of Canada

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—The Prince of Wales today made farewell to Canada. Through the Canadian Club of Montreal, his words were addressed to the Association of Canadian Clubs and to the whole Dominion. Giving his impressions of the last five weeks, he drew a metaphor from the mines of precious metals he inspected in the Rockies, a week ago. "Canada," he said, "the heart and soul of Canada, the possibilities of Canada, is a reef of precious metal so vast in extent that no man living can value it; the deeper you go the more astonished you become at the wealth—material wealth and wealth of character—which you find there—and the effect on the press is apt to give you two columns about my recreations, two lines about any job of work I may do."

"I should like so much to convince you that this is not the case, and perhaps I can best do it by telling you of something which struck me quite lately. A few days ago on my way back East, I spent one of the most interesting mornings of my life in the big Sullivan Mine up at Kimberley. When we got down below, they showed me a map of the place on which was charted not only the portions of the reef which they are now working, but all the hidden undeveloped portions as well. Forgive me if my technical terms are not absolutely correct."

"Well, I said to them: 'How can you possibly know that the rest of the reef is there?' 'How can you satisfy yourselves that some day or other it won't die on you and you will find there is no more reef to work on?' Their answer was very simple. They took me around the corner and showed me a diamond drill. 'Many of you probably know all about diamond drills, but for the benefit of those who don't, this, in layman's language, is what happens: a very small hole is bored to an astonishing depth, sometimes two or three thousand feet deep, and from the very marrow of the earth, the drill brings up a sample of the ore at the end of that small hole. 'With those samples in front of the sum total of the samples I have collected since I landed in Quebec just over five weeks ago. I can put them in one sentence, using the metaphor from mining—Canada, the heart and soul of Canada, the possibilities of Canada, is a reef of precious metal so vast in extent that no man living can value it; the deeper you go, the more astonished you become at the wealth—material wealth and wealth of character—which you find there, and the effect on the press is apt to give you two columns about my recreations, two lines about any job of work I may do."

RECREATIONS AND DUTIES
"But are those impressions worth recording? I think they most certainly are. But I have to ask myself the question, 'Do you think so, too?' At first sight you quite naturally feel that I, who have been from a superficial point of view just traveling round the Dominion in a special train, partaking of unlimited hospitality much like any other visitor—you might well feel that I can have gathered no impressions worth talking about, either here or when I get back home, especially as a few of my good friends in the press are apt to give you two columns about my recreations, two lines about any job of work I may do."

DIAMOND DRILLS
"Well, I said to them: 'How can you possibly know that the rest of the reef is there?' 'How can you satisfy yourselves that some day or other it won't die on you and you will find there is no more reef to work on?' Their answer was very simple. They took me around the corner and showed me a diamond drill. 'Many of you probably know all about diamond drills, but for the benefit of those who don't, this, in layman's language, is what happens: a very small hole is bored to an astonishing depth, sometimes two or three thousand feet deep, and from the very marrow of the earth, the drill brings up a sample of the ore at the end of that small hole. 'With those samples in front of him, anyone with the right experience can trace the course of the reef with great accuracy and can estimate its extent and its staying power. I can determine whether it is a reef with a future or a reef with none."

SAMPLING CANADA
"Well, gentlemen, I get the same opportunities at that diamond drill, and I hope sincerely that I don't miss them. I travel over this great uncharted reef of untold wealth which is Canada, here today and somewhere else tomorrow. I can't hope to work the whole reef, but that does not mean that I only scratch the surface. I only get the chance of boring here and there, but it is a chance of boring deeply, though that's a dangerous thing to say in an after-luncheon speech. I like the diamond drill; I get my samples; believe me, I don't undervalue them, and I never throw them away. I may get them on the prairie at a parade of returned men, in some hurried tour of a factory, or in a casual talk during a round of golf. But they all count and they all stay with me."

TRUE NATIONAL WEALTH
"I started out to try and tell you of my impressions of this last trip—

the sum total of the samples I have collected since I landed in Quebec just over five weeks ago. I can put them in one sentence, using the metaphor from mining—Canada, the heart and soul of Canada, the possibilities of Canada, is a reef of precious metal so vast in extent that no man living can value it; the deeper you go, the more astonished you become at the wealth—material wealth and wealth of character—which you find there, and the effect on the press is apt to give you two columns about my recreations, two lines about any job of work I may do."

President Coolidge is shown above with Mrs. Coolidge and their son John, who has joined them for a short vacation. The President has been caught in a broader smile than the public usually sees. Perhaps the prospect of freedom from office has relaxed his customary severity.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

PARENTS RESPONSIBLE FOR CHILD'S DIET

Many thoughtless parents resign themselves to the belief that there are unavoidable children's diseases. This opinion is far from true. Such acute diseases as measles, chicken pox, scarlet fever, tonsillitis, and whooping cough are produced by unwholesome habits of life. Errors in diet, lack of bathing, and excessive mental strain are really responsible for the eruption and toxemia which make these ailments possible. As the child's habits are entirely under the control of the parents, the fault must be laid to a lack of knowledge on the part of the parents, and nature should not be unjustly blamed.

In the Springtime of life all of the natural tendencies are toward perfect health, and sickness does not come on as a thief in the night. Usually, the parents are quite careless in allowing their youngsters to do things which are known to be injurious, such as gorging with candy, etc., and one parent tries to outdo the other in bribing the child with sweets in order to gain the child's affection. Mother buys her loved one a lollipop and father goes on better with an ice cream cone, while Auntie feels that she cannot hold her own unless she buys a sack of jelly beans, then grandma comes along and treats him to a bag of popcorn. And so the game of bribing goes on at the expense of the health of the youngster whom they all love so dearly and try to adjust metabolism and bring the child through a crisis.

In the chronic disorders of childhood the same sort of causes gradually lead to the development of bronchitis, chronic catarrh, and undernourishment. The diseases that I have named are the principal ones which young children develop, but are easily cured as soon as faulty habits are corrected. Later on in life the same errors in living bring on the hundred and one diseases of middle age; but with the child, because of the tendency to grow and develop, only these few disorders present themselves. Nature wants the child to live, and good health quickly returns as soon as the child's habits are changed to habits for health.

If the budding youngster is allowed to eat haphazardly, only haphazard health can be expected. A young puppy has more instinctive desire toward right food than a baby, who depends almost entirely upon its elders to direct it in the right way of living. The responsibility lies entirely upon the parent or guardian, and Nature must not be accused of being at fault. Food must be selected carefully, and proportioned and combined with chemical exactness, if the ultimate perfection in physical growth is to be hoped for. Even a child born in the worst surroundings from unhealthy parents can generally be made into a strong and beautiful expression of health if the correct training is instituted at an early age. A sincere and serious study on the part of the responsible parents or teachers is all that is necessary.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Question—Mrs. W. W. writes: "I want to thank you for the help I have had through your column—your advice is wonderful. Will you please tell me how to get rid of catarrh? Have much phlegm in my throat and severe headaches. Have had my eyes tested and properly fitted with glasses, which reduced the headaches a little. Am taking to build up, as I only weigh 102 pounds. Am twenty-eight years old."
Answer—Do not try to put on weight while you are getting rid of catarrh. A mucous diet will probably reduce your weight to some extent, but through following a well balanced diet afterwards and taking vigorous physical culture exercises, you will be able to build up a strong body, and perhaps more weight if Nature considers it good for you. Temporarily eliminate all heavy starches, all sugars and fats with the exception of a small amount of butter. Send for a special article on the cure of catarrh.

Question—E. N. asks: "Is milk a good substitute for meat, eggs, and fish? If a person eats greens sometimes, starches, fruits, and milk in abundance, does he still need meat, eggs and fish?"
Answer—The protein of milk is not exactly the same as that found in flesh foods, but it provides an excellent substitute for meat with those who are theoretically vegetarians. There is no good scientific reason against the use of a certain amount of flesh food in the diet, but milk or cheese may be substituted for one of the meats.

Question—S. M. R. writes: "I seem to be in good health, but every once in a while I have a siege of nerves. Will you please tell me the cause?"
Answer—Nerves are caused from chronic hyperacidity of the stomach, which is brought to an acute stage by the use of some especially irritating food, or bad mixtures of even good foods.

Attempting Channel
CAPE GRIS-NEZ, France, Sept. 2.—The thirteen-year-old twin sisters, Phyllis and Bernice Zittendorf, of New York, started at 11:43 o'clock tonight in an attempt to swim the English Channel. They were followed by Miss Lorna Marriot, the British swimmer, who was forced to abandon an attempt yesterday. She entered the water at 11:50. A light northeasterly breeze was blowing when the swimmers took the water. An enthusiastic crowd cheered them on their way.

MUSIC EXHIBITION HELD

Geneva's international exhibition of music held recently in the large Palace of Exposition, proved a success. One of the features was an extensive display of modern instruments, including even those of mechanical and electrical variety. The history of the development of music included displays of instruments, sheet music, manuscripts and original documents written by great masters. In the auditorium were given a German opera festival, symphony concerts by orchestras from Amsterdam and Rome, performances by the Paris Opera Compagnie and an exhibition of rhythmic gymnastics.

NOSE POWDERING BARRED

Powdering of noses has been barred by many factories in Europe where large numbers of girls are employed. The move is to reduce waste of time. In one factory it was noticed that one stenographer, otherwise very efficient, stopped working fifteen times in one hour to powder and beautify her nose. The average girl, it has been calculated, powders her nose four times an hour, taking two minutes for each operation. When several hundred girls are employed on a special task, the loss of time is very costly, say experts. Some employers balk at the efficiency idea, saying the experts forget feminine psychology, and that when it comes to getting out work a woman with a well-powdered nose is worth two that are overhated and have shiny noses.

the value of the building carried out

For the past few weeks the permits

PRINCE MISTAKEN FOR WAITER FILLS ORDER

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 2.— Prince Oscar, the elder brother of the King of Sweden, who renounced the throne, was once mistaken for a waiter, an incident which he recalled when he recently turned over his Villa Fridholm, in Gothland, for a nursing home.

One day three English tourists came up to the villa and, thinking it a restaurant, seated themselves on the porch, Prince Oscar said.
The Prince stepped forward and asked what they wanted.

"Tea and pastry," was the reply.
Prince Oscar called a servant and had the refreshments served. When he declined to permit the self-invited guests to pay for the tea and pastry, they learned his identity.
The tourists evidently regarded the joke as on them, for the incident did not become known until Prince Oscar told of it in hanging over the deed to the Villa Fridholm.

Saddest Spot
On Earth Is Wedding Scene

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Macaulay described the Chapel Royal of St.
Peter ad Vincula, within the Tower of London, as "the saddest spot on earth." He was thinking of all those of high birth, men and women, three queens among them, whose headless corpses were hurriedly buried within St. Peter's after the executioner had swung his axe in the Tower Green.

Despite its age-long mournful memories St. Peter's was chosen as the place of her wedding by a bride of twenty-one the other day. A very bright and charming wedding it was, too. The bride was Miss Louisa Margaret Austen, daughter of Yeobule Warder Albert Austen, one of the famous "Beefeaters" of the Tower, who for the last ten years has been keeper of the Bloody Tower, and in that time has told its story to tens of thousands of visitors from all over the world.

The bridegroom was John Harry Beames, a member of the orchestra
of the Olympia. It was in the Olympia that Mr. Beames met his bride eighteen months ago.

It is seldom that a bride's father
makes as brave array as the bride,
and it was so at this wedding. The bride wore a shell-pink dress with orange blossom. Her father was dressed in the full glory of the office of Yeoman Warder—doubtless of red and gold, spotless white frill with Tudor roses, a uniform
which the Warders of the Tower have worn on state occasions for over 500 years. Any one who has seen Gilbert
and Sullivan's opera, "The Yeoman
of the Guard," will realize what the brave show Yeoman Warder Austen
made.

There was a reception at the Chapel, the quarters of the bride's parents within the Tower,
and the bride cut the wedding cake
with a sword which has been in the Tower for many centuries.

Victoria M. Cross, aged nine, hon-

GRANDMOTHER GIVES
BLOOD TO SAVE LIFE
OF MANGLED YOUTH

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Sept. 2.—A pint and half of blood given him
by the sixty-three-year-old grandmother for whom he had called his delirium, brought William Oviermann, twenty, back to recovery
after he had almost rushed to death in a mixing machine at a baking powder plant here.

Mrs. Emily Coons, the grandmother, volunteered for the operation after two young men were rejected. "What's the matter with me?" she inquired.

Surgeons hesitated because of her age.

"Come on, let's go," the woman
said.

The operation was performed in St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, where the youth had been taken suffering from a torn right arm and an injured foot so badly hurt that it had to be amputated.

Mrs. Coons has been caring for her grandson twelve years. His father is dead and his mother lives
in Westfield.

Tower, and in that time has told
its story to tens of thousands of visitors from all over the world.

The bridegroom was John Harry
Beames, a member of the orchestra
of the Olympia. It was in the Olympia that Mr. Beames met his bride eighteen months ago.

It is seldom that a bride's father
makes as brave array as the bride,
and it was so at this wedding. The bride wore a shell-pink dress with orange blossom. Her father was dressed in the full glory of the office of Yeoman Warder—doubtless of red and gold, spotless white
frill with Tudor roses, a uniform
which the Warders of the Tower have worn on state occasions for over 500
years. Any one who has seen Gilbert
and Sullivan's opera, "The Yeoman
of the Guard," will realize what the brave show Yeoman Warder Austen
made.

There was a reception at the Chapel, the quarters of the bride's parents within the Tower,
and the bride cut the wedding cake
with a sword which has been in the Tower for many centuries.

GRANDMOTHER GIVES
BLOOD TO SAVE LIFE
OF MANGLED YOUTH

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Sept. 2.—A
pint and half of blood given him
by the sixty-three-year-old grandmother for whom he had called
his delirium, brought William Ovi-
ermann, twenty, back to recovery
after he had almost rushed to death in a mixing machine at a baking powder plant here.

Mrs. Emily Coons, the grandmother, volunteered for the operation after two young men were rejected. "What's the matter with
me?" she inquired.

Surgeons hesitated because of her
age.

"Come on, let's go," the woman
said.

The operation was performed in St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, where
the youth had been taken suffering
from a torn right arm and an injured foot so badly hurt that it had
to be amputated.

Mrs. Coons has been caring for her grandson twelve years. His father is dead and his mother lives
in Westfield.

FUR FARMING IN WEST DEVELOPS

Industry Becoming an Adjunct to Agriculture and Addition to Income

The securing and disposal of furs has at all times been a spare time occupation and additional source of revenue to the Western Canadian farmer, particularly in his early years in newly opened territory.
Even though denser settlement results in the diminution of the majority of the wild fur-bearers there are certain animals which thrive with settlement and continue to be profitable to settlers trapping them.
The development of the fur-farming industry has merely increased the farmer's opportunity in this direction, and in the manner in which the Western agriculturist is coming to diversify his activities and sources of revenue, the raising of some fur-bearing animal is to an ever larger extent becoming an adjunct to Western Canadian farming.
Instead of the Western Canadian settler's income from fur tending to decrease, opportunities for greater profit are increasing.

In particular, facilities for engagement in the muskrat industry in Western Canada have been widened.
Recently the Ministry of Agriculture of the three Prairie Provinces met at Winnipeg, and after deliberation accepted an offer of the Dominion Government to hand over to them swamp lands in their provinces to be leased to residents for the purpose of muskrat farming.
Tentative rules and regulations were drawn up to ensure uniformity of procedure in the three provinces, so that the entire area can now be expected to make an united profit in the new industry. British Columbia, which has always controlled its own lands, has already made a very auspicious start, having among its many establishments the largest muskrat ranch in existence, so that it will in no wise be behind the Prairie Provinces in this regard.

FILINGS ON MARSH LANDS
Muskrat farming in Western Canada appeals both as a wholesome activity on a large scale, or merely as a part-time occupation, to general farming pursuit. Some idea of what the industry may become in the territory may be gathered from the fact that more than 200 residents of Alberta were awaiting the conclusion of the agreement with the Dominion Government to file upon marsh lands and filings have been made almost daily in Saskatchewan. Some very extensive acreages are already under lease in Manitoba and British Columbia.

There have been few more remarkable developments in Western Canada than the manner in which marsh and swamp lands, passed over as worthless in the agricultural settlement of that territory, have suddenly acquired a high value
and come into general demand.
Possibilities of the industry have appealed alike to provincial governments, industrial boards, and municipal bodies, and elaborate rules have been drawn up to insure development of the industry along sound lines. It cannot be doubted but that the muskrat industry is to be an important one in Western Canada.

MUSKRAT MOST VALUABLE Already the muskrat has come to lead all other fur-bearing animals of the Dominion in the total value of peltry sold, not alone by reason of the great number of pelts taken, but on account of the high value rise in the price of furs. In the olden days furs sold in London for a few cents apiece, and in even more recent times trappers scarcely found the trouble of taking the little rodent justified. In the Dominion fur catch of 1924-25 an average price of $1.11 was returned per pelt, as compared with $1.15 the previous year, and at the last Montreal fur sales, prices for muskrat pelts ranged from $1.50 to $2, with prime ranch-bred pelts bringing a slightly higher figure.

Prices for muskrat skins have now become stabilized in the view of the trade, and are likely to remain so insuring profitable marketing. No oversupply is apprehended, since muskrat fur readily adapts itself to more expensive furs which are being depleted under increasing attle-ment, and the market is absorbing the trade, and is likely to remain so in their wild state as to be found in settled farm communities in Western Canada, they can be greatly increased and made more profitable through domestic raising.

INDUSTRY EXPANDING
At the same time the coyote, badger and rabbit, animals which do not disappear with settlement, are profitable to the settler. In Western Canadian farmers, Western Canada is successfully rearing the coyote and badger, and a market has developed for rabbit skin in the territory which means considerable to it. Last Winter, the first season of commercial exploitation, 2,000,000 rabbit skins with a revenue of $200,000 were sold from the Prairie provinces. In one comparatively small district of Southern Alberta, fur which figures are available, farmers made $40,000 from hides taken during the Winter, including coyote, badger and rabbit.
One farmer in the area earned $300 in one month, and in a few weeks caught and disposed of fifty badger skins at $2 each.

Instead of being on the decline the fur industry, in the nature of its development, is becoming more popular and profitable to the developed regions of Western Canada. This is indicated in the several fox breeding and other societies for the promotion of fur animal breeding which have come into existence there. It is further supported by the fact that fur dealers in Montreal and other centers have appointed agents in many parts of the west territory of Western Canada to collect the larger supplies of furs made available. From Agriculture and Industrial Progress in Canada.

Dried Flies and Ground Beetles
On Menu at Zoo

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Imported dried flies at forty cents a pound, and ants' eggs and ground beetles at sixty, are holding menu costs at the Bronx Zoological Park far beyond "ham and" prices at some of the downtown "one arms."

Fastidious appetites of one of New York's best-fed classes daily require strange and uncommon foodstuffs from almost every corner of the world, says Dr. W. Reid Blair, director of the Bronx Zoological Garden.

The city spends more than $44,000 annually, Dr. Blair says, to feed hundreds of animals and reptiles, and 2,040 specimens of birds. Birds are among the zoo's most expensive residents. For some of them dried flies are imported from Europe, two pounds of which are devoured daily, and for other birds ground beetles and ant eggs must be imported from Africa and South America.

The weird assortment of "chow" served from the zoo commissary daily is as equally strange as the assortment of residents there. However, few people realize, officials say, that most of the "poor, confined animals" are doubtless happier in the present environment than they would be in the wilds.

This is mainly because a great proportion of them are native New Yorkers, Bronx-born, and, to quote a member of the zoo's staff of keepers, "never saw anything wilder than some of the people that stand there and stare at them every day."

Australia's exportable surplus of wheat is now 40,000,000 bushels.

Nearly 50,000,000 pounds of tobacco was grown in Porto Rico this year.

SHIRLEY The Girl Who Leaped Into Life

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

CHAPTER XLII

Shirley's knock at the door was answered immediately. She stepped in, following the gesture of the woman at the entrance. Something at the back of her knees seemed to be dissolving. She was almost faint with the acute physical fatigue of emotional strain.

"May I sit down?" She slid into an upholstered chair in the small hotel sitting room. With the relaxation her brain cleared. She summoned all her will to gather herself together.

"Certainly, if you wish it." The voice, carefully modulated, held a trace of surprise.

Mrs. Cranshaw remained standing, half-consciously dramatic. She did not consider this the sort of interview at which one should sit down. For a moment neither spoke. Shirley turned her direct gaze on Adela Cranshaw's face, a gaze frankly inquiring, concentrating on its object, unimpaired by self-reliance.

Adela, she saw at once, was beautiful—tall and dark, her smooth hair cut exquisitely to the contour of her head. The eyes were dark, submerged in tragedy, the mouth finely cut and tortured. It was a face of real suffering—of suffering that watched itself and plunged more deeply, that glowered in tragedy because tragedy made life more piercing, gave it the grandeur of great emotions.

"You wished to see me?" Adela said at last. The clear voice was like water running over ice. Its very coolness was part of the drama. Shirley listened to its tone; she saw as if through another's eyes the picture she made, her dark head slightly bent, one hand, slim and white, poised lightly on the back of a chair. Portrait of a Woman in Hell.

Shirley was bewildered, but her bewilderment acted upon her as a challenge.

"Of course I had to see you! That summons—you have made a frightful mistake. Why didn't you send for me? Why didn't you ask me?"

"Why should I? I have the facts. You traveled for six months with my husband—"

"As his secretary," Shirley broke in.

"His secretary?" Adela's hand tightened on the chair. "And what qualifications had you, a girl just out of school, to be his secretary? What experience had you had? If he needed a secretary, why didn't he take one out of his own office?"

"I know," Shirley said. "What you say is reasonable. Only the unreasonable thing happens to be true. There's no use discussing why Mr.

Cranshaw took me as his secretary. I'm not speaking for him, but for myself. I was untrained, but I learned—I could prove that to you."

"I don't pretend to know much about business, but I believe the training generally comes before and not after getting a situation."

There was deliberate insult in the last word. Mrs. Cranshaw lingered over it to make sure that Shirley caught the implication of social inferiority—as if the girl were a parlor maid caught flirting on the stairs.

But Shirley's wits were flying fast. She was deaf to Adela's social nuances.

"How do you know all this?" she asked, ignoring Adela's last speech.

"Oh, you needn't attempt to deny it. I had my husband traced by detectives to San Francisco. I had you followed."

"So that was the man we kept seeing—"

"You admit it, then?" The voice had risen a tone like a tightened wire. It was still under control, but it was vibrant with an over-tone of hysteria.

"Wait, please. You don't understand. If your detective gave you any evidence of misconduct between Mr. Cranshaw and me, you were misinformed, that's all. I give you my word that you are mistaken. You must believe me—you must believe me!"

"Oh, I believe you!" Mrs. Cranshaw said sharply.

Shirley stared at her in amazement.

"If I didn't believe you, do you think I'd give my husband's freedom—give him to you? I know you haven't seen him since you landed. I know exactly what the detective got—and what he didn't get. But the judge won't know. If you deny it in court, what chance will you have, against what my witness will swear to? It will be just what you would say in self-defense. If it were all true. On the face of it, the obvious fact, how would your story sound?"

"But you can't do this to me—you can't! You don't know what you're doing! I've never done you a moment's harm—and you say you believe me. They believe me."

"You ask me why—I don't care about your life. Suppose you suffer. What is your suffering compared to mine? With clenched hands Adela beat upon the upholstery of the chair. "When did you ever think of me? When did you ever think of me? My best years and then left me—because he was tired."

Shirley felt as if she were in a ward, fixing Mrs. Cranshaw with an astonishing stare—a look of young, penetrating honesty. "The best years of her life? With the woman before her, the words were utterly meaningless. She reached for something solid, real, in this welter of feeling.

The years which they had passed together had come out of Justin's life as well as Adela's—he had no more taken them from her than she had taken them from him. Even time itself—time, which happened alike to everybody, Adela saw only as something to feed or deny her insatiable demands. And when it came to that, all Justin wanted was not to take any more of those years of which she spoke so bitterly. How could she fail to see that?

Shirley was no longer frightened. She saw clearly that her task was far more difficult than

NANAIMO SEES SMART WEDDING

Native Son and Daughter United When Miss Eastham Marries Mr. Grahm

NANAIMO, Sept. 2.—A very pretty and fashionable wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Church Wednesday evening, when two well-known members of the younger set, Miss Evelyn Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Eastham, and a native daughter of Nanaimo, became the bride of Thomas Grahm, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Grahm, Chapel Street, and a native son of this city. Rev. S. Ryall performed the ceremony in the presence of a gathering that filled the church to overflowing, many being unable to gain admission.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, looked radiant in a lovely creation of white crepe back satin, in full-skirted effect, piped at the hemline. The train was accentuated with rhinestone trimmings. The bodice was fitted in effect and was trimmed with a band of satin, draped over one shoulder, and extending to the waistline at the front, where it was held in place with a large bow mounted with a coronet of rhinestones, and carried a bouquet of roses. There were five attendants.

The maid of honor was Miss Lillian Johnston, prettily attired in a gown of love-bird green silk georgette, with a hat of the same shade. The other attendants were Miss Olive Eastham, sister of the bride; Miss Nora Grahm, sister of the groom; and Miss Annie Wallace.

Miss Eastham was attired in rose pink georgette; Miss Grahm wore an imported creation of azure blue, and Miss Wallace's dress was equally lovely in a mauve shade. All wore hats to match their respective gowns, and carried sheaves of roses and gladioli. Little Miss Tweed, hope led the bridal procession, as a flower girl, dressed in a ruffled frock of pale pink and blue georgette.

Mr. Clarence Murphy accompanied the groom. The ushers were Messrs. T. Wilson and Harold Gard. During the signing of the register, Mr. Edgar sang "For You Alone."

Mr. Andrew Dunmore played the nuptial music as the bride party entered and left the church.

A reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents, Albert Street, to 150 relatives and friends of the couple. The reception rooms were gaily decorated with twisted crepe streamers of pink and mauve, banked ferns, cily flowers and tapering candles. Mrs. W. Grahm, wearing a gown of orchid georgette, and Mrs. Eastham, in a becoming gown of black crepe back satin, were hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Grahm were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts, which constituted among them the complete furnishings for their new home on Fitzwilliam Street. The couple left later for Victoria by motor.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. Breeze, Mr. Thomas Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ward Bell, and Miss Olive Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sloan, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. W. Cairns, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. McIntyre, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Anderson, Victoria.

UNCERTAIN

One afternoon a stranger alighted from a train at a hustling town in the West, and headed up the street.

Finally he met a man who looked like a native.

"Pardon me," said the stranger. "Are you a resident of this town?"

"Yes, sir," was the ready rejoinder of the other. "I have been here something like fifty years. What can I do for you?"

"I am looking for a criminal lawyer," responded the stranger. "Have you one here?"

"Well," said the native, reflectively, "we think we have, but we can't prove that he is."

VICTORIA ARTIST TO GIVE RECITAL

Mrs. Green Will Appear at Opening Concert of Artists' Series on September 23

The Ladies' Musical Club is presenting Gertrude Huntly in recital on September 23 as the first attraction on its artist series course.

Mrs. Huntly has brought honor to Victoria by her great success at Wigmore Hall, in London, in March of this year. The Ladies' Musical Club has always been more keenly interested in Gertrude Huntly than any other organization could be from the fact of her having helped the club when it was very much in need of help. Now that she is giving the first recital of the year, being at the head of a list in which noted Metropolitan singer, an internationally-known violinist and that phenomenal organization, the English Singers, figure, the club feels that Gertrude Huntly is receiving the honors due her from her fellow citizens and which she so well deserves. Her recital in London was a veritable triumph. In the different press notices she received, mention is made of her extraordinary technique, "capable of the poetic as well as the brilliant," "sympathetic in interpretation and brilliant in execution."

The village curate was wont to preach to the boys of the grammar school on certain days in the year. The pupils attended the service and had the rest of the day as a holiday.

One morning the curate was reading over the notes for his sermon when his small son, in a voice vibrating with anxiety, asked:

"Father, is your's a long sermon today?"

"No, my boy, not very."

"Please tell me how long?"

"About twenty minutes," answered the curate, a little astonished. The boy breathed a sigh of relief.

"Thank Heaven!" he gasped. "The other chap said they'd give me an awful licking if it were more than half an hour."

There has never been a material that has had greater feminine charm than georgette, and its popularity for negligees and lingerie is quite understandable. For this negligee, the georgette has been picked around the wide sleeves and a wide band of fillet lace is inset with fine embroidery. The wide satin ribbon that falls to the hem continues around the neck underneath the fillet through which its darker shade shows effectively.

Weddings

CHAPMAN-TRICK

The wedding took place at Epiphany Church, Seattle, on Tuesday evening, when Miss Helen Trick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alfred Trick, was married to Mr. John Chandler Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chapman, of Victoria.

Green and white were the colors used in the effective decorations of the church, the aisle outlined with streamers of white tulle and tall candelabra holding burning tapers were entwined with garlands of daisies. The altar was banked with greens and standards of white gladioli and Michaelmas daisies.

The bride wore a beautiful wedding gown of ivory satin with a drapery at one side and trimmed with pearls. A slight tracery of the pearls was around the neckline, and also on the front of the skirt. Her veil of princess lace was bound up with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a shepherd's crook, tied with white orchids and roses.

Miss Corinne Trick, the maid of honor, wore a bouffant model of almond green tulle, with flowers of darker green on the full skirt.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Russell Gierlin, Mrs. Harold Crosby, Miss Eleanor Beckett and Miss Helen Grant, wore gowns of georgette and lace fashioned alike in shades of green, ranging from the pale almond to a deep jade, with oval yokes of the lace in back and in front.

They carried crooks, tied with small bouquets of roses and sweet peas. Winifred Tipping was the flower girl. Her frock was of Nile green ruffled georgette.

Mrs. Trick, mother of the bride, wore rose beige crepe, edged with rhinestones, and Mrs. Chapman, mother of the bridegroom, wore flesh-colored crepe Elizabeth.

Mr. Harold Morford was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Wesley Langlow, Robert Hartman, Waldo Chamberlain and Wayne Gilmore.

Mrs. Israel Nelson sang "O Promise Me" and "All For You" before the ceremony and Miss Mae Young, of Bremerton, played the wedding marches.

A small reception at the Trick residence followed the ceremony. Assisting were Mrs. W. H. Scott, Mrs. William Tipping, Mrs. Lewis Kelley, Mrs. Leon Moore, Miss Doris Trick, Mrs. Frank Parrish, Jr., and Miss Dorothy Rogers.

Gehrig Crashes Out Two Homers to Gain on Ruth; Bambino Gets One

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Jakie May held the Chicago Cubs at his mercy today when he allowed them only three singles and struck out seven of their batsmen, while the Reds took a 5 to 0 victory from Jones and Brüllheart at Cincinnati.
The Braves edged the Brooklyn Robins out of sixth place by winning the series opener at Boston, 3 to 2. Eddie Farrell, former Giant, played an important part in the victory, making three hits, scoring a run and driving in the other two with well-placed drives at crucial moments.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Making twenty hits, including two home runs by Lou Gehrig and one by "Babe" Ruth, the New York Yankees blasted out a 12 to 2 victory over the Athletics at Philadelphia today.
Ruth made his forty-fourth homer of the season in the first, and Gehrig, next to bat, made his forty-second, adding number forty-three in the second frame. Gehrig's fourth hit, as did Coombs and Koenig.

Chicago's ninth inning rally fell short by one run of tying Cleveland at Chicago, and the Indians took the second game of the series, 7 to 6, today.

Blankenship's error and a base on balls, the only one the Indians received, proved the undoing of the Chicago pitcher.

The Browns rallied in the ninth at St. Louis for two runs and won from the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2. Pitcher Milton Gaston's single brought in the winning run after Williams had tripled and O'Neill had doubled in the final frame.

Only three games were scheduled.

Tunney Will Make World Tour After Dempsey Contest

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, has announced that the heavyweight champion will tour the world following his fight with Jack Dempsey here September 22. The tour will be made, win, lose or draw, he said.
"Gene will be accompanied by his pal and confidant, Eddie Egan, former heavyweight champion of Yale and an Oxford scholar," Gibson said. "Several members of British royalty, now living in London, are partly responsible for the champion's decision to girdle the globe. Hunting of wild animals in Africa and an extended visit to the Continent will be part of the schedule, which is still in embryo."

SCULLERS GIVEN FINAL DIRECTIONS

Major Goodsell, of Australia, and Bert Barry, of England, Will Row for World's Title on Monday

START TO BE BY MUTUAL CONSENT
George Pocock, Will Umpire the Race—Oarsmen Are Ready—Light Work-outs Today

VANCOUVER, Sept. 2.—Final instructions from George Pocock, umpire for the world's single sculling championship between Major Goodsell, of Australia, holder of the title, and Bert Barry, of England, over the Port Moody course here on Monday, were tendered the two oarsmen and their representatives, at a conference late this afternoon. The two men will go to the starting line at 2:30 p.m., and the start will be by mutual consent. Goodsell won the toss for position and will have the choice of course.

The race will be rowed under the Sydney referee rules which differ slightly from the English regulations. Viscount Pocock wished the oarsmen to start from stakeboats or to have flags on the line so that there should be no question of any man getting the start. Barry, the English champion, exercised his prerogative and declared that the start would be by mutual consent.

READY FOR TEST
Both Major Goodsell, of Australia, and Bert Barry, of England, defending champion and challenger for the world's single sculling championship, are ready for their race on Labor Day over the Port Moody course. They will take light workouts today. But Sunday will be spent in resting for the task ahead of them.

They both look clear of eye and ready for the word while their camps radiate confidence. Goodsell did about three miles Friday morning, consisting of starts and minute runs, whereas Barry paddled down the course two and a half miles after ten fast strokes and then sculled at an even swing on the way home. Goodsell's stroking was as high as fifty-two in his minute runs. Barry did a world of speed on his ten-minute start, and a lot of people favor him to take the title on the start. He does not stroke as high as the champion, but is certainly getting pace out of his boat.

RENEWED ACQUAINTANCE
George Pocock, of Seattle, who will be the official umpire of the race, visited both training camps Friday and saw the men work out. He was very glad to see Bill Coles, Barry's trainer, as they had several tight races in their youth in England, and it was the first time they had met since 1911. In 1910 it was considered a good bet in the Old Country that the two men, Pocock or Coles, would come to the fore as the leading sculler. Both were young and had been one of the most principals in the coming race, but the war spoiled Coles' chances and Pocock moved to Canada and never sculled in competition again. Before he left England at the age of nineteen, Pocock won two big races. He was first and Coles was third in the 100-pounds handicap in 1908, and former getting sixty-three seconds and the latter sixty seconds from Ernest Barry in a three-mile race. The next year Pocock beat Coles by three feet for the Kingston Coat and Badge.

JACK'S CHIEF AIM
Daily workouts at the camp of Jack Dempsey have indicated that the ex-champion's chief aim now is the development of a defence against left jabs.

The former heavyweight titleholder went through a fast round with Jack McCann, the St. Paul heavyweights, yesterday, and the outcome of the race meeting here tomorrow. The Rancocas entry of Nassau and Earl ranks favorite at 8 to 5.

Two scheduled starters, Shaktup and Pink Lilly, were down as heavy favorites on the eve of the race. The distance will be over the six and half furlongs route.

Not only had to avoid defeat to head the championship standing. Nottingham made 233 in their first innings, to which Glamorgan replied with 375, Bates scoring 167 and Bell 57. This morning Nottingham had to go in on a very difficult wicket. The bowling of Mercer and Ryan was deadly and the Nottingham batsmen were all dismissed for 81 runs. Swedish Swimmer Sets New World's Record in Italy

BOLOGNA, Italy, Sept. 2.—Arnar Borg, the famous Swedish swimmer, today established what is claimed to be a world's record for the 1500 metre swim by negotiating that distance in nineteen minutes, seven and one-fifth seconds. Borg set this figure in winning the final in the men's contest for 1,500 metres.

If Borg's figure is accepted as a record, it will displace that held by the young Australian swimmer, A. Charlton, since July 15, 1924. Charlton did 1,500 metres, free-style, in Paris in twenty minutes, six and six-tenths seconds.

NO STOPPING YANKEES IN LEAGUE RACE

Miller Huggins, New York Manager, Has Great Crew of Stars, Who Are Displaying Wonderful Class

WILL AGAIN BE IN WORLD'S SERIES
American Leaders Have Played Havoc With Pennant Aspirations of Rival Contenders

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The New York Yankees are piling up a lead in the American League pennant race that looks like one for the ages. The Yankees have won four of the last five games, and their lead over the second-place St. Louis Browns is now 10 games.

The Yankees played brilliantly, and caused the biggest surprise of the season in shattering the hopes of local fans who anticipated a more even match. The Argos battled hard, but could not cope with the aggressiveness of the Easterners. It was a rough game, the Argos checking hard and making out several pennants, but the local defensive play was weak and the Ontario squad kept the play pretty much around their opponent's net, especially in the third inning when they marked up four tallies.

The winners of the series will go to Edmonton to meet the Alberta champions in a sudden-death game on Labor Day.

The winners of the Edmonton match will play New Westminster in the Dominion finals.

SOCCER SEASON WELL UNDER WAY
Brand of Football "Served Up" in Old County So Far This Year Has Been Somewhat "Green"

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The soccer football season is now well under way, and the quality and quantity of the various divisions having in the course of the current week completed at least two games. At one time, however, the demand of football served up has been somewhat "green" and it will be a week or two yet before the players hit their proper stride.

The Metropolitan teams of the First Division have begun indifferently, each one having a victory and a defeat chalked up to it, and not the least interesting feature of this is the defeat suffered by the Spurs at the hands of Middlesbrough on Wednesday.

Coming on the heels of Middlesbrough's hard-fought win from Manchester United at Old Trafford last Saturday, it spoke somewhat doubtfully for the Spurs' present condition. West Ham might have been a bit of a surprise, but they have the opportunity of upsetting other clubs that are still in a healthy position.

The third match of the day will see Cowichan opposing Victoria at the Jubilee Hospital Grounds. These clubs have no chance of coping the opposition.

Today's complete schedule follows:
Garrison vs. Incogs at Work Point Barracks.
Five C's vs. Albions at Beacon Hill.
Cowichan vs. Victoria at Jubilee Hospital Grounds. All games will commence at 2:30 p.m.

INTERCITY FIXTURE
On Monday Victoria will oppose Vancouver in an all-day match at the Jubilee Hospital Grounds. The locals have a strong team awaiting their opponents from across the Gulf, and a closely contested match is anticipated.

The following will represent the Five C's against the Albions at Beacon Hill today: C. E. Quinlan, E. H. Quinlan, Butterworth, W. H. Pendray, Pillar, Attwell, Lea, Galt, Wilson, Cox and Thomson.
Umpire, R. H. Barker.

Game Is Cancelled
Inability on the part of the Vancouver Wednesday Leaguers to field a team for the intercity cricket game on Monday has necessitated the cancellation of the match here.

Twenty-Seven Horses in Event After Declaration of Acceptances—Possibility of French Success in 147th Renewal of Famous Race for Stake Money of $60,000

DONCASTER, Eng., Sept. 2.—Twenty-seven starters were left in the classic St. Leger after declaration of acceptances today. The fifth classic of the year, senior and longest of the five, is to be run here next Wednesday.

There is a possibility of a French success in the race, with Baron Edouard de Rothschild's Chateau Palmer and Phidias and M. Unzue's Facon prominent candidates.

The race will be the 147th renewal—it is four years older than the Derby—and will be over the St. Leger course of a mile, six furlongs and 132 yards for the stake money of about $60,000.

WESTONS WIN BY BIG SCORE
DEFEAT ARGONAUTS IN MANN LACROSSE GAME BY 11-2 MARGIN

Winners Are Present Holders of Dominion Championship, and Are Favored to Meet Salmonbellies

WINNIPEG, Sept. 2.—Taking a lead in the opening period, the Toronto Westons, the Eastern Canada champions, overwhelmed the Argonauts of Winnipeg, 11 to 2, in the first match of the Mann Cup lacrosse championship elimination series here today.

The Westons played brilliantly, and caused the biggest surprise of the season in shattering the hopes of local fans who anticipated a more even match. The Argos battled hard, but could not cope with the aggressiveness of the Easterners. It was a rough game, the Argos checking hard and making out several pennants, but the local defensive play was weak and the Ontario squad kept the play pretty much around their opponent's net, especially in the third inning when they marked up four tallies.

SUTHERLAND TO MEET W. K. YOST

Tacoma Golfers Reach Final in Play for Washington State Amateur Crown on Fircrest Club Course

CHAMPION WILL BE NAMED TODAY

TACOMA, Sept. 2.—Two Tacoma golfers, W. K. "Bill" Yost, of the Fircrest Golf Club, and Ross Sutherland, of the Tacoma Country and Golf Club, will tomorrow, in a thirty-six-hole match, decide the 1927 Washington State amateur championship. Yost, who has been playing scintillating golf throughout the tournament, won his way into the finals by defeating William Davidson, of the University Golf Club, Seattle, 6 and 5, while Sutherland shot fine golf to dispose of Arthur, Pease, of Fircrest, 4 and 3, in the other bracket.

The weather was not conducive to good golf, hence the medal scores did not tell the full story of the supremacy of the victor in the semi-final round. Yost turned two up on Davidson with a 40 on the first round, four over par, and then proceeded to win the match by holes in a row in par figures, to win 6 and 5. Davidson simply could not get a par and had to pick his ball

Tie Necessitates Extra Yacht Race

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Sept. 2.—For the first time in the history of the International Star Class Yacht Racing Association championship races, it is necessary to sail an extra race to decide a tie. At the end of what was to be the final race of the series in Narragansett Bay, three boats, Colleen, Tempe III and Mackrel, were even on the total point score with seventy-one apiece. Ruddy, the 1926 champion and defending boat, is out of the running but in fourth place with sixty-eight points. They will sail the tie off tomorrow afternoon.

up at the eleven when he got into the deep woods with his tee shot. Pease got off to a disastrous start in his match with Sutherland, losing the first five holes in a row, a handicap that he was unable to overcome. Sutherland had turned the first round in 38 and was but one over par on the second nine until the match was concluded.

Frankie Demski, ex-Tacoma caddy, and Ralph Schoenfeld, of Seattle, meet in the finals of the first flight tomorrow.

OAK TREES BAD STORM SHELTER

Belief That Certain Trees Are Immune From Lightning Strikes Back Long Time

Lightning causes an average of about 3,450 forest fires in this country every year. In the study of these fires, the United States Forest Service has gathered a great body of statistical information concerning the frequency and distribution of lightning storms in forested areas. Much of this has been published and is a factor in the far-flung campaign of fire prevention. Now the same Federal service is planning to investigate the kindred problem of the liability of different kinds of trees to lightning stroke. Probably no definite conclusions will be reached for some years, but in the meantime the news that such an undertaking is in contemplation has aroused much interest in scientific circles, as well as among practical foresters and lumbermen.

It is true that nearly all woodmen believe that lightning strikes some species in preference to others, regardless of the size and location of the trees. The oak, which is the favorite victim, and which is the order of relative liability to this kind of injury? Are some species altogether immune from lightning? These questions are perennial, and they have called forth a variety of answers. One seeks in scientific journals and the other in the belief that it served as a lightning rod.

IMMUNITY OF THE BEECH
The beech has, however, been especially renowned, both in this country and abroad, for its supposed immunity. In an article published about a century ago in a British scientific journal it is stated that at that period people in Tennessee were wont to take refuge in beech forests during thunderstorms, and an early American writer, Hugh Massena, Magistrate H. C. Shaw announced that he would commit the accused for trial.

At the request of Dugald Donaghy, defence counsel, formal commitment was deferred until Saturday, so that the case could be arranged with the higher court.

Prisoners of many nations have been detained here. Boer prisoners made their home here during the South African war, and French prisoners of war were confined in a wooden building on the same site during the Napoleonic wars. Military offenders in the Portsmouth district will in future be sent to Aldershot.

WIDOW IN CHINA GAINING A STATUS

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2.—Heretofore, the widow in China, whether young or old, when she re-married has been a "person of no dignity," but the day appears to be arriving when such condition no longer exists. The Nationalist Government, through its women's organizations, has decreed that such reference is "obscene" and "must be corrected."

AQUATIC SPORTS TO BE FEATURE

Cumberland Committee Working Hard for Big Event There on Labor Day

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 2.—Preparations are almost completed for the big event of Monday, Labor Day, when aquatic sports will be held at Puntledge Lake, Cumberland, commencing at 10:30 a.m. The committee have been working extremely hard during the past few days and the big raft, or float, opposite Mr. J. Rees' place is almost completed and will prove a decided asset to the patrons of the lake, not only on Monday, but throughout the year—the fishermen and picnic parties in the summer and the hunters in the winter.

A diving tower will be erected on the float this week-end, and it is the intention of the committee not to allow anyone on the float unless competing in the event about to be pulled off. Everything possible will be done by the committee to insure safety for the crowd expected to be in attendance, but special efforts are to be devoted to the care of the younger ones.

There will be swimming races, rowboat races, outboard motor races, launch races and a special challenge handicap between Cameron's and Rees' slow poke. What promises to be the funniest event of the day will be the greasy pole event, for which a prize of $5 will be given to the winner. Ornamental and fancy diving will be another event that is sure to draw a good crowd. Given fine weather, there is no reason why Puntledge Lake should not be the rendezvous of all residents of Cumberland on Monday.

The Cumberland Rod and Gun Club intend holding another fishing contest in the near future, and one of the stipulations will be that all fish caught be donated to the hospital.

LADYSMITH, Sept. 2.—An enthusiastic meeting of the Ladysmith Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday evening, when much important business was transacted in connection with the Fall Fair. This will be held in the Agricultural Hall on September 8 and 9. It is expected that entries in all branches of the show will exceed those of previous years. Lieut.-Governor Bruce has kindly consented to attend on Thursday. He was unable to officially open the Fair, as he was performing the ceremony of opening the exhibit at Courtenay which, unfortunately, is on the same date as that arranged by the Ladysmith Agricultural Society.

CRICKET PROSPECTS SEEM TO BE GOOD

Cumberland Unearthing Wealth of Material With View to Playing Courtenay

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 2.—The sponsors of the cricket club about to be formed in Cumberland for the purpose of showing the team in Courtenay just how the popular English game should be played, are very gratified at the number of prospective players in sight. During the past week a fast bowler, a slow bowler, a wicket keeper and two medium-pace bowlers have been unearthed. With at least six or seven men who claim to be batters of "county calibre," Courtenay is in for a merry time. Efforts are being made by some of the local enthusiasts to land some equipment so that the team might get in some practice before tackling Courtenay, although the fast bowler seems to think that no practice is necessary to beat anything the farmers can produce. If there are any cricket enthusiasts in Cumberland who have, or who would like to donate, any equipment, they are asked to send it along to Rev. E. O. Robathan, The Vicarage, Cumberland.

Boy Scout Saves Boy From Drowning

LADYSMITH, Sept. 2.—James Brown, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown, was heroically rescued from drowning by Edward Harrison, fifteen years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Harrison, of this city.

A number of children were playing on the transfer wharf when Jimmy Brown fell into deep water. He was not able to swim and was sinking a second time when Ed Harrison saw him in distress, and without hesitation plunged into the water and succeeded in saving the boy from a watery grave.

Harrison was fully dressed and with difficulty got the boy to shore where he applied first aid and in a short time was able to be taken home. The parents were most grateful to the boy who had accomplished such an act of bravery. Harrison is a true Boy Scout and is richly entitled to receive the honor of a life saving medal, which has been recommended by Scout Master Martin.

Fishing Contest Is Even More Popular Than Predecessors

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 2.—The last fishing competition held at Puntledge Lake proved to be even more popular than its predecessors, due, no doubt, to the fact that the contest started on one day and finished the following day. The prize for the biggest catch for the two days was won by E. Williams, who weighed in fifty pounds of fish. The prize for the biggest catch on the fly was awarded to Sam Williams, the prize in this instance being kindly donated by Jack Williams. Ben Horbury, with the biggest fish for the day, was awarded the prize donated by Dick James, while the best fish taken with either bait or troll, was divided between J. Horbury and Victor Preline, this prize being donated by Charlie Dalton. The contest was voted by the members of the Cumberland Rod and Gun Club the best held this season.

Cumberland friends of Miss Coleman will wish her all happiness in her new life.

London Jazz Beats To Outwit Burglars

LONDON, Sept. 2.—"Jazz Beats," or "Beating the Bungalow," is the latest move in the game of wits played between the Metropolitan Police and the intelligent cracksmen who use his knowledge of the police beats to his own advantage when committing a burglary.

So stereotyped have certain beats in some divisions become, and so regular have the "points" made between constables and their superior officers been kept that cracksmen, by watching a policeman pass a given point, have been assured of a period free from interruption. But this is being changed. With much poring over maps, fine tracings through congested streets and semi-rural lanes, and innumerable journeys of survey, beats have been arranged, and instead of being stereotyped, walks are being cut and planned in jazz patterns, which in many cases recross their own itineraries.

Thus, no matter how observant a cracksmen may be, he will not be able to tell when the policeman will enter the street from the other end.

MATERNITY WARD IS OPENED BY TRIPLETS

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—By way of bestowing its official blessing upon the maternity department of the new Women's General Hospital Building, the stork arrived there with triplets one noon recently. These three newcomers, a boy and two girls, were presented to Mrs. J. Ellis, of this city.

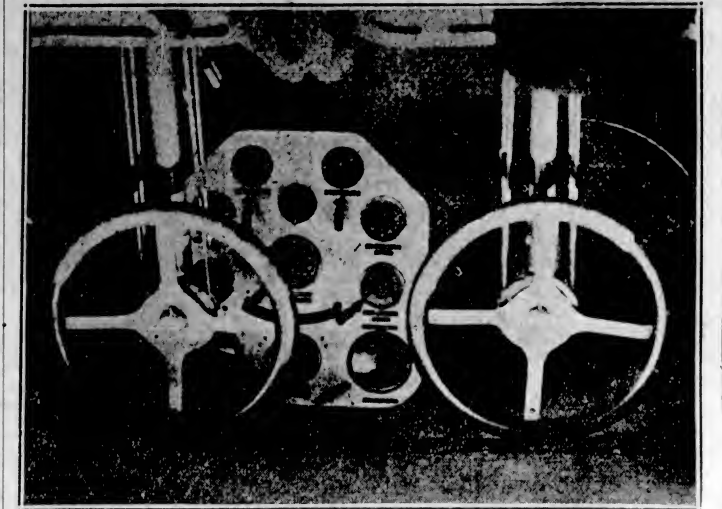

Through some error, Mr. Ellis, who had brought his wife to the hospital, was first informed only that he had a son. This was contradicted by another member of the staff, who declared that twins had been added to the population of the hospital nursery, and it remained for the superintendent to impart the correct information.

Bereaved Mother Proves Philosophic

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 2.—"If this drowning of my three children is a lesson to others, it is worth the sacrifice," said Mrs. Howard when thanking all the citizens for their great kindness and sympathy in the loss of the three Howard children by drowning. "It would have been a worse blow to me if one of the children had returned home alive and the other two had been brought home dead. I am glad that Gordie (Gordon, the seventeen-year-old son) jumped in to try to rescue his two sisters."

With the avowed intention of compelling Charlesons as he sails, the seventeen-year-old son of a wealthy cotton broker of Liverpool took his ukulele with him as he started recently to see the world as a deck-hand on a cargo steamer.

Flanagan, the local builder, was constructing a brick wall at the end of a client's garden. The ground in this vicinity was inclined to be boggy.

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the man living next door. "I should have thought you knew better than to build a wall there. Flanagan, it will fall over in a day or two." "Indeed," retorted the builder angrily, "and who cares if it does? O'm making her five feet high and six feet wide, so if it does topple over, begorrah, it'll be a foot higher than it was before."

MINISTER OF LANDS MAKES TRIP INTO ISLAND FORESTS

Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, has returned from a trip which took him into the virgin forests of this island in the vicinity of Strathcona Park. The visit of the Minister was undertaken for the purpose of investigating for himself on the ground the exact situation with respect to the country south and east of Buttle Lake. The trip afforded the opportunity for the Minister of Lands to test himself in the matter of physical endurance as compared with his form in earlier years. Mr. Pattullo returns quite pleased with his record, which gave an assurance that he is still in first class shape, and is ready to submit to quite severe tests of endurance.

Speaking of the demand for parks throughout the province, the Minister pointed out that everywhere in British Columbia there was little trouble in getting into the primeval conditions. This, he said, would continue for long years to come.

Opening of a number of new glass plants in Belgium has caused a shortage of labor there.

Eighty parcels of Spanish land, valued at nearly $15,000, were sold yesterday at the Royal Oak Municipal Hall by R. R. F. Sewell, C.M.C., during the fourteenth annual tax sale.

The sale commenced at 10 o'clock, with brisk bidding, and lasted until late in the afternoon. The auction will be resumed at the same hour this morning and again on Tuesday morning, until the several hundred parcels of land are sold.

Reverend William O'Connell stated yesterday that the clean-up of property was the biggest ever held in Spanish and will result in better municipal financial conditions. Buyers were found to be mostly residents of Spanish and Victorians. No American visitors were noticed.

SALVAGE KING AT WRANGELL

DIVER WILL SURVEY DAMAGE TO HULL OF PRINCESS CHARLOTTE

Passengers of Wrecked Ship on Way South—Present Memorial to Crew of Ship

To render aid to the Princess Charlotte, of the B.C. Coast Service, the Canadian Pacific Railway, damaged when she struck Vichniefski Reef last Tuesday night, the Pacific Salvage Company's vessel, Salvage King, reached Wrangell, Alaska, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Some time this morning, it is expected, a diver of the salvage vessel's crew, will make an underwater examination of the damage to the Charlotte's hull.

If it is possible, the Charlotte will steam south to this port under her own power, with fuel oil transferred from the Salvage King. If not, she will be towed south for drydocking here.

The Charlotte's passengers embarked on the Princess Alice yesterday morning and are now proceeding to Vancouver, where they will arrive tomorrow morning. It is expected.

THANK CREW

A testimonial, signed by the entire passenger list, was presented to Captain Salmity, master of the Charlotte, at Wrangell, Alaska.

"To the captain, officers and crew of the Princess Charlotte:

"We, the undersigned passengers of the Princess Charlotte on the voyage beginning at Vancouver, B.C., August 24, 1927, desire to express to you our grateful appreciation of your masterly guardianship of our lives in the mishap that occurred on the night of August 30, and your unflinching and successful efforts to minister to our every comfort during the trying hours that followed. We extend to you, Captain Salmity, our sincere sympathy and regret that this accident, which the soundest seamanship, we feel sure, could not have avoided, should have come to you after so many years of faithful and successful service as master. We felicitate you that in the course of that service to life conferred on your care has ever been lost. That record, thanks to your expert management and the efforts of those under your command on this voyage, remains unbroken."

"To Purser Barker we extend our appreciation and thanks for his skillful and helpful management of our stay in Wrangell and the adjustment of transportation and other business matters."

Nickel Galleon Presented to Minister

FASHIONED from solid Canadian nickel, this model of a fifteenth century galleon was recently handed in shipment to Canada by the Canadian Pacific Express Company and forwarded to Hon. Charles McCrear, Minister of Mines in the Ontario Government. The ship was manufactured in England at the request of the Mond Nickel Company, which is concerned in the nickel industry.

Every detail in the reproduction of this model has been adhered to, and during the entire construction nothing was used but pure Canadian nickel. On account of the hardness of this metal the model was produced only after many weeks of work on the part of expert metal workers. The ship stands about two feet, counting the hull, which is ornamented with curling waves and battle towers. The model is valued at $3,000.

HALIBUT CLOSING IS NOT DECIDED

Commission Chairman Denies Report of Recommendation to Stop Fishing

The International Fisheries Commission, appointed under the terms of the Halibut Treaty, has recommended that the halibut be closed for a period. Mr. John P. Babcock, chairman of the commission, declared yesterday.

Mr. Babcock said the commission had reached no decision on this question and had made no reports on the subject either to the Dominion or to the American Government.

The data which the commission has been gathering are assembled at the office of the director of the Fisheries, Mr. W. F. Thompson, where they can be examined by anyone engaged in the halibut industry.

Directly after the closed season begins in November, the commission will hold public meetings in Ketchikan, Prince Rupert, Vancouver and Seattle. A digest of the data gathered will be submitted at these meetings and the views of halibut fishermen will be heard by the Board. Afterwards, the commission will draw up its report for the Canadian and American Governments.

COLLISION LEADS TO DAMAGE SUIT

French Line Sues Owners of Surmeo as Result of Recent Accident

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Compagnie Generale Transatlantique more generally known as the French Line, has filed a libel action here in the sum of $125,000 against the Submarine Boat Corporation and the Transmarine Lines, owners of the freighter Surmeo.

The complaint charges that the collision which occurred on June 3 between the French Ss. Arkansas and the Ss. Surmeo in the Straits of Juan de Fuca, was the result of poor navigation on the part of the Surmeo's officers. A hearing on the action will be held September 8.
